Mayor To Enlist Civic Army as Census Takers

EVERYONE IN CITY WILL BE COUNTED UNDER AREA PLAN

Importance of Accurate Enumeration to Assure Continued Leadership in South Is Emphasized.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday initiated a move to provide a volunteer army of hundreds of civic-minded and patriotic citizens to assist census takers in counting every person in the city and thus assure Atlanta's continued leadership among cities of the south.

Following an informal conference with Fonville McWhorter, Atlanta's official census taker, the mayor said he will ask every civic organization, labor union, every church and every school in Atlanta to designate committees to work with enumerators in seeing "that every living soul in Atlanta is included in the final census tabulations prepared under Mr. McWhorter's direction."

Area Division.
Raymond W. Torres, engineering secretary of the city planning commission, promised to divide the municipality into various areas so that committees from the scores of organizations may intelligently and effectively help enumerators.

Hartsfield will call civic, church, labor, school and other organization leaders to a joint conference next week, and will ask them to join with the city administration in co-operating with census takers to see that every person entitled to be counted is included in the local census. He probably will issue a call for the meeting sometime next week, and said definitely that it will be done in time for the various groups to organize and assume "charge" of their respective territories before the actual enumeration begins April 1.

Booths Planned.
It also was anticipated that conveniently located booths will be established in downtown Atlanta for those who wish to visit them and place their names in the census pot.

McWhorter requested the mayor to urge Atlantans to co-operate with enumerators and "not put them off."

"We are going to count every man, woman and child in Atlanta before we complete our work," McWhorter said. "It is imperative that we do that. In the first place it is our business to do so, and in the second, we have a patriotic stake in Atlanta's showing among other cities of the nation. Atlanta's place among the other cities will be fixed for the next 10 years in this census count, and we must do our full share in seeing that it is accurate and honest. That is what we propose to do."

Hartsfield pointed out that the

She Smashes a Precedent

The First Lady smashes a precedent. Mrs. Roosevelt testifies before the house District of Columbia subcommittee, the first wife of a United States President to appear before a congressional investigating group. She told about "appalling" conditions she personally saw on her recent visits to district welfare institutions.

JOE LOUIS WINS; DECISION BOOED

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(UP)—Thunderous boos shook Madison Square Garden tonight when the announcement was made that the heavyweight champion, Joe Louis, had retained his title after being forced to back-pedal for most of the 15 rounds against Challenger Arturo Godoy, of Chile.

Godoy, the roughest, toughest man that Louis ever met, turned in one of the greatest upsets in heavyweight history by his amazing showing against the Negro champion who had knocked out seven of his previous title challengers.

Ovation for Chilean.

The crowd of 15,657 cash customers shook the garden's girders with ovation after ovation for the heroic Chilean who not only dared to exchange with the Negro champion, but actually forced the "Brown Bomber" about the ring in every round except the 14th when Arturo elected to clown and make sport of one of the most feared men the ring has known. The champion won the decision, but it was a split verdict, in which Referee Arthur Donovan, who has officiated at all of Louis' eastern fights, and Judge George Lecron favored Louis. Judge Tommy Shortell voted for Challenger Godoy.

The United Press score sheet had the bout figured for a draw—exactly even—with each man winning five rounds and five being so close that they were even. It was that kind of fight.

Afraid of "Charge."

Louis back-peddled because he is "head shy." He didn't like a man to come at him—charging in with his head down, like Godoy did tonight. Louis back-peddled because he was afraid of breaking a hand on the low crouching, bobbing and weaving target that offered only forehead and elbows as a target.

Louis did less jabbing with that famous left tonight than in any previous fight of his career, and a straight right was a rarity.

First Lady Urges Study Of Institutions

Breaks Precedent by Appearing Before Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a precedent-breaking appearance before a congressional investigating committee, today recommended a survey of the District of Columbia welfare institutions to correct conditions she found "very, very sickening."

The first lady, dressed in a simple hunter green velvet frock and a matching brimmed hat with a ostrich plume, appeared before the district health subcommittee at the invitation of Representative Thomas D'Alesandro, Democrat, Maryland, chairman. She put aside a short grey squirrel cape as she took her seat—the first wife of a President to appear before a congressional committee.

Beneath klieg lights as movie cameras turned, Mrs. Roosevelt related that on recent surprise visits to the District Home for the Aged, the Receiving Home for Children and the Industrial Home School for Boys she found them inadequately staffed, antiquated and over-crowded.

There was a distressing lack of hospital facilities at the old folks' home, she said. "One came away with a very, very sickening feeling." She deplored failure to segregate small children from older, hardened children in the children's home. She did not think they had sufficient food.

She said that over a period of years she had visited a number of the district's institutions, beginning with the jails. "I never found an institution in the district that was a model institution," she said. "They vary in degree. I think anyone who knows about institutions would agree with me that they need improvement."

WAGE BUYERS HIT IN DRIVE LAUNCHED BY ATLANTA BAR

V. K. Meador, Committee Head, Cites Usurious Interest Rates as High as 260 Per Cent Yearly.

Salary buyers were attacked yesterday by Victor K. Meador, chairman of the Atlanta Bar Association's "Committee to Enforce Usury Laws," as he prepared preliminaries of a campaign to end illegal charges of money-lenders declared to reach as high as 260 per cent a year.

"Profits so staggering as to defy all laws of economics and justice are extorted by 'loan sharks' who now escape regulation by means of the salary-buying dodge," he declared in a formal statement of the committee's purposes. "Actually they lend money; technically, they merely buy the right to collect a part of the victim's wages on the next pay day. In most instances the wages are not earned when the alleged assignment is executed."

To Name Committee.

The 40 members of the committee will be named Monday by President Philip H. Alston, and organization is expected soon afterward. One important phase of operation, it was disclosed, will be to persuade employers to take less stern view of garnishment proceedings.

"Fear of the loss of his job through disclosure of his predicament often keeps a victim in the toils," Mr. Meador explained.

4,000 Instances Cited.

Purpose to create such a committee was ratified formally Thursday night by the executive committee of the bar association, meeting with President Alston. Mr. Meador, who has 4,000 instances of illegal interest charging in affidavit form, immediately was named to head the group.

"Since the announcement of the Atlanta Bar Association that a committee has been appointed among its members to 'enforce the usury laws of Georgia' a number of loan shark victims have been to the committee with their tales of woe."

"Since the civic societies of Atlanta have ceased in their efforts to curb such activities, others engaged in questionable activities have invested large sums in the financial field."

"Victims Are Weak."

"Loan sharks are economically strong, while their victims are economically weak. The conditions under which the loan shark and his victim meet lack that equality of bargaining power essential to just business transactions. When borrower and lender meet on such a basis, exaction of oppressive and unconscionable terms by the lender is certain. The harsh methods necessary to enforce these unconscionable terms greatly magnify the harm."

"The result is that the business inevitably leads to social deterioration, economic helplessness, unemployment, poverty and despair on the part of the borrowers, public charity for their families and substantial lowering of the general welfare of the people."

"Wherever one finds a loan shark, there he will inevitably find the conditions here outlined. In other words, these conditions are natural and inevitable concomitants of the business of lending small sums in violation of usury and other regulatory laws."

"This committee, appointed by the Atlanta Bar Association, will function until the present conditions are remedied. Co-operation by civic organizations and public-spirited citizens in bringing about a solution is invited."

Death was a passenger aboard the 11,669-ton Italian liner Orazio when it left Genoa for Barcelona. The tragedy occurred January 21 off the southern coast of France.

PRESIDENT, GARNER IN TWO PRIMARIES

Illinois Republicans File for LaGuardia; Wisconsin Also Battleground.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Two great tests of political strength between President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner were virtually assured today for early April.

In both Illinois and Wisconsin, the names of each were entered in preferential presidential primaries which may expect to prove the most critical contests of an intensive pre-convention campaign. The elections are scheduled for April 2 in Wisconsin and April 9 in Illinois.

Meanwhile, in Springfield, Ill., petitions entering Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York in the Illinois Republican Presidential primary were filed with the Illinois secretary of state tonight. Like Democratic petitions in behalf of President Roosevelt a week ago, they did not contain a signed certificate of candidacy.

In Springfield Garner filed his name today alongside that of President Roosevelt in the Illinois Presidential primary. A statement of candidacy, signed by the Texan, was attached to the Garner petitions.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. had Republican petitions filed today in Illinois in the only acceptance to a challenge from Thomas E. Dewey.

The results, political experts thought, would prove of great importance, not only in that they would show the feeling of a vital sector of the middle west, but because they might influence the trend elsewhere and indicate the relative vote-getting abilities of the two.

Architecture Medal Given Tech School

Beaux Arts Institute of Paris Bases Honor on Students' Prizes.

Georgia Tech's school of architecture last night was accorded high international recognition with award of the university medal of the Beaux Arts Institute of Paris for the best scholastic record in 1939.

The presentation was based on the work of Tech students in national architectural competitions. Fifteen major prizes were won in this sphere during the year, among them being the principal award of the Beaux Arts Institute of New York.

Professor Harold Bush-Brown, head of the department, received the medal, emblematic of the school's election to Le Societe Des Architectes Diplomes Par Le Gouvernement Francais, Groupe Americain, from John Mead Howells, distinguished New York architect, representing the society.

It was given at the conclusion of a dinner in Tech's dining hall attended by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president; Dean Vernon Skiles, faculty and students of the department, alumni and Atlanta architects.

In conjunction with this award, the silver medal of the Societe was presented to A. Clark Hudson, of 282 Techwood drive, for having placed second in the list of those whose work received the greatest number of values in class "A" work at the Beaux Arts Institute of Design.

Mr. Howells paid high tribute to the 15 different prizes won by Tech students of architecture during the past year. Members of the Department of Architecture responsible for the achievement include Professor Bush-Brown, Professors James H. Gailey, Paul M. Hoffmann, Matt L. Jorgensen, Richard T. Morenus, Maurice Siegler, Julian Harris, and special lecturers Lamberson, Taylor and Richard Bauer.

GREEN CONDEMNS AFL 'RACKETEERS'

Federation Head Scores Such Leadership But Hasn't 'Power to End It'

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—President William Green today condemned "racketeers" in the ranks of the American Federation of Labor, but declared he is powerless to remove them and suggested to his critics it is the duty of the courts to punish those found guilty of law violations.

"No president of the American Federation of Labor is vested with authority or clothed with power to interfere with the administration of any of its international unions or remove any officer elected," said Green.

He said his remarks were directed specifically to Communist Westbrook Pegler and others he claimed had criticized him for failure to remove certain "racketeers" from unions comprising the federation.

Respecting the long and bitter AFL-CIO controversy, Green said he interpreted a statement by President Roosevelt today as "advice to the nation" that CIO Chief John L. Lewis had "refused and rejected the President's request to resume peace negotiations."

The President said in Washington that Lewis told him shortly before Christmas that he saw no useful purpose which would be served at that time by a renewal of the White House-sponsored labor peace talks.

Discussing the "racketeer" angle, Green said he understood the charges largely had involved George Scalese, president of the building service employees union, and William Bioff, representative of the motion picture operators' organization.

Green said Scalese once had served a prison term for Mann act violation, but that since then he understood the labor official had been conducting himself "honestly and satisfactorily and I think he has been punished enough."

Bioff, the federation's president said, has run afoul of pandering and income tax laws, and the cases are still pending. Explaining the federation's structure, Green said that each member union is an organization within itself, clothed with authority to elect its own officers, determine their qualifications to serve, and "retain or remove them at will."

BERLIN FORESEES NO SERIOUS ROW ON ISTANBUL ACT

Reich Seems Anxious to Prevent Trouble That Might Disrupt Supply Lines in the Balkans.

ISTANBUL—Hundred German technicians, ousted from war and naval ministries, given 48 hours to leave country.

WASHINGTON—United States announces opening of conversations with neutral nations desiring restoration of sound peace.

HELSINKI—Continued Red attacks exhaust Finns' ammunition; defenders resort to bayonets.

LONDON—British down Nazi bomber, damage two more, destroy two submarines.

BERLIN—Germany claims destruction of eight British or British-convoyed ships.

MOSCOW—Russians report Finns have suffered "heavy losses" on Karelian isthmus.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

There is obviously a suspicion in Berlin, as well as in London and Paris, that Soviet Russia may move in the spring to upset the status quo in southeastern Europe.

It seems equally clear that the Reich is virtually as anxious as the Allies to prevent that from happening. The Nazis want no trouble of any kind that might disrupt their supply lines in that quarter of the world.

This is shown by their calm reaction to recent developments in Turkey. Despite virtual Turkish expropriation of an important German-owned shipyard in the Dardanelles area, and a simultaneous purge of German technical experts from Turkish national defense payrolls, Berlin sees no probability of a serious diplomatic tangle with Turkey.

Turkish Slap.

What that Nazi complaisance in the face of a Turkish slap at German dignity probably means is that Berlin is prepared to go far to keep things quiet in the Balkans. Just how far is not so clear.

Prime Minister Chamberlain has formally voiced his approval of recent extension of the Balkan entente pact for another seven years as an attempt to maintain "stability and security" in the Balkan theater.

Turkey's surprise move to oust German influences and tighten up her grip on the Dardanelles, potential back-door to Europe's big war, throws a new light upon what must have transpired at the Belgrade conference of the Balkan entente powers last week. As the formal ally of Britain and France against any threat to the Dardanelles or the peace of the Mediterranean by Russia or Germany, Turkey has made it plain that she is a non-belligerent but not a neutral in the Allied-German war.

Entente Member.

It was through Turkey, as a member of the Balkan entente, that Allied war purposes in the Near East must have been laid before the conference. The first

Wives Tell Sad and Sordid Stories to Judge as Divorce Mill Grinds Out Many Decrees

They told it to the judge in divorce court yesterday, and for the most part it was the same old sad and sordid story of drinking, infidelity and non-support which led to nervousness, sickness, expensive doctors' bills and finally to separation. Left to right they are Mrs. Irene House, who charged her husband got drunk and failed to come home for two or three nights at a time; Mrs. Alice Lillian Shaw, whose husband, she said, slapped her, and expressed regret at marrying her, and Mrs. Beatrice McEver, who said her husband left in a huff because she asked him for a little money to run the house on. At right is Judge A. L. Etheridge, who hears it all and speaks the words, "Let the jury have the papers."

Husband Testifies Bride Married Him Just for Spite

Confession Ended the Honeymoon, Man Tells Judge; Divorce Court Hears Same Old Stories and Grinds Out 31 First Verdicts and 27 Final Decrees.

Imagine the grief of D. E. Williams when he and his little bride got back from their honeymoon, and she told him she was through, explaining that she didn't love him anyway, but had just married him to spite somebody else.

Imagine also the feeling of woe in the bosom of Mrs. Alice Lillian Shaw, when her husband, LeRoy, smote her sharply with his open palm and told her he wished he had never wed her in the first place.

And imagine the sadness of Mrs. Beatrice McEver when her Jack rolled in one night, lit like a Christmas tree, and then finally went out and didn't come back when she asked him for a little money to run the house on.

Many More.
Imagine these three multiplied a dozen times, all suffering in spirit until they lost their health, got nervous, and had to see a doctor at great trouble and expense to themselves and you have a fairly clear picture of Fulton county's divorce mill, where yesterday Judge A. L. "Jack" Etheridge and Walter C. Hendrix ground out 31 first verdicts and 27 final decrees for a total of 58 marital split-ups in all.

The six-year marriage of Melba Lee St. John and E. A. St. John hit the rocks because he gambled away not only his money but her money, she testified before Judge Etheridge. Besides he stayed out late at night, came home drunk, and wouldn't work steady, she said.

Mrs. McEver's marriage to Jack T. McEver lasted but one year because he stayed out nights and drank excessively, she testified. She said she remonstrated with him about it and he promised to do better but didn't.

Asked by the court if he worked, she replied:
"Not as long as I worked."

"Why did he leave you?" her attorney inquired.
"Because I asked him for money," she said.

John Turner Nash's wife, Mrs. Hazel Nash, listened to her mother instead of me, wouldn't prepare his meals, and was constantly nagging, he testified in winning his decree.

Ora Loyce Daniel said her husband, H. A. Daniel, rode around in a big automobile, but wouldn't work, and lost two jobs which she got him.

Mrs. Doris Phelps won her decree because her husband, Norman T. Phelps, went to Alaska, two years after their marriage, and refused to take her along.

"He would get drunk and stay out all night—sometimes two or three nights in succession," Mrs. Irene House testified in winning her divorce from Raymond House. They were married in 1933 and separated in 1939.

Foreman of the jury which signed the verdict in Judge Etheridge's court was L. W. Werner, a bachelor.

Marietta Wants 'General' Returned to Kennesaw

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Feb. 9.—Mayor L. M. Blair has warned Chattahoochee that, at the proper time, he intends to wage "an uncompromising fight" to have the famed Civil War engine "General," now at Chattahoochee, brought back to Cobb county.

The mayor said the locomotive, which figured in one of the most daring events of the 1860's, should be placed on display at Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield park, near the spot where General Andrews' raiders stole the engine.

City officials hope to use the locomotive among historical displays which should interest thousands of tourists here annually. Another plan recommended by the mayor is a permanent historical museum in connection with Kennesaw park.

In this display will be a number of Confederate relics and war souvenirs.

If government regulations will not permit the museum to be erected on park property, city officials will depend on a site near the mountain where the greatest number of people can be accommodated.

If successfully completed, the mayor said, the historical project would be used as a base for disseminating information about Marietta to visitors.

Capture of the locomotive at Kennesaw, April 12, 1862, is regarded as one of the most dramatic episodes of the War Between the States. The train crew and its passengers were dining at a hotel when the Union raiders, led by James J. Andrews, fled with the engine.

Lower fares on the Stone Mountain interurban car line will go into effect Monday, according to an announcement yesterday by the Georgia Power Company.

The new rates were approved by the Georgia Public Service Commission for a 90-day trial period.

The single-trip fare between Atlanta and Stone Mountain will be reduced from 30 cents to 20 cents and the round-trip fare, from 42 to 35 cents.

The fare between Atlanta and Mt. Zion will be reduced from 24 to 15 cents and between Atlanta and Clarkston from 18 to 15 cents with a round-trip rate of 25 cents.

The present rate of 10 cents between Atlanta and Decatur and between Atlanta and Avondale, on the Stone Mountain line, will remain unchanged. The fare from Atlanta to Scottdale will be reduced from 12 to 10 cents.

In applying to the Georgia Public Service Commission for permission to make the reductions, the Georgia Power Company stated that the Stone Mountain line has been operating unprofitably for a number of years because of the loss of patronage caused by the increased use of private automobiles. The sharp reduction in fares was asked for a 90-day trial period in an effort to increase the number of riders on the interurban line.

City officials of Stone Mountain and Clarkston have made several requests for the reductions in fares, it was stated.

ANNULMENT URGED FOR EX-ATLANTA
Virginia Stevenson Anderson's Husband Seeks "Freedom."

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Referee Richard P. Lydon today recommended annulment of Alvin V. Anderson's marriage to Virginia Stevenson Barton Bayer Anderson, formerly of Atlanta.

Anderson testified, in an uncontested suit, that he did not know his wife previously had been married when they were wed May 2, 1936, while he was attending Georgia Tech in Atlanta. It developed, he said, that she had been married twice before and was "not as innocent as she had led me to believe." Referee Lydon's recommendation must be approved by Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman.

Los Angeles county owns property worth $58,598,000, an increase of about a million and a half over a year ago, the county auditor reports.

Leaders Here Pledge Aid To $8,500,000 Power Plan

Etowah River Project Designed To Set Up Flood Control, Open Coosa Route to Barge From Gulf; Army Would Direct Operations.

Indorsement of an $8,500,000 power and flood control project, on the Etowah river at Allatoona Pass above Cartersville, was granted yesterday by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, after delegations from Cartersville and Rome met with the Atlanta group.

At the same time the Chamber empowered E. S. Papp, president, to appoint a committee to seek the best methods of co-operating with the Rome and Cartersville officials.

The project would be one of the largest of its kind in the southeast, and would create a vast storage basin for the power plant. It would be under supervision of the United States army. Power would be sold to private interests.

Spokesmen for the delegation also pointed out that the project would be the first step in opening up the Coosa river, which could provide a channel nine feet deep all the way to the Gulf of Mexico and permit the passage of barges.

Cartersville delegates included S. Luke Pettit, president of the Chamber of Commerce; John W. Dent, city manager; M. L. Fleetwood, publisher of the Tribune-News; W. R. Frier, publisher of the Bartow Herald, and S. A. Spivey, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Coming from Rome were J. J. McDonough, president of the Chamber of Commerce; John N. Graham, Meredith Graham, H. L. Lanham, George Byrd and Henry Pyne.

Atlanta hosts were President Papp, Granger Hansell, Ivan Allen, Alvin B. Cates, George A. Giese, H. Carl Wolf, Baxter Maddox, W. E. Mitchell, Dean S. Padden, T. Guy Woolford, W. R. Ulrich, Frank K. Shaw, Opie L. Shelton and Herbert Hayes.

CHARLES J. BLOCH ASKS FOR PRIMARY

New Committee's Secretary Says 'We Are Almost Socialistic State.'

Broadcasting another appeal for a Presidential preference primary, Charles J. Bloch, of Macon declared yesterday Georgians should have a chance to vote on whether the Democratic party will abandon its old principles and favor a third term.

Speaking as secretary of the newly formed "Presidential Primary Committee," he charged state party leaders were guilty of conspiring "to deprive the people of Georgia of their sacred privilege of suffrage."

Follows Dunlap.
Three days ago Committee Chairman Edgar Dunlap in another address said that if President Roosevelt won nomination for a third term at the national convention, he would be defeated in the election.

Bloch said there were other vital questions on which Georgia Democrats could express themselves only through a Presidential primary.

"We are almost a socialistic state," he declared. "Is that trend to continue? Will the next nominee of the Democratic party desire to continue as a permanent portion of our government edifice those pillars of socialism which were initially intended only as temporary props? Is 'relief' to become an abiding part of the American plan of living?"

Foreign Policy.
Failure of the state executive committee to call a primary would deprive Georgians of a voice on this issue, the committeeman said.

The speaker cited the current international situation and said the platform to be adopted at the Chicago Democratic convention would contain the formulation of the future foreign policy, with this policy "probably" to be executed by the nominee of this convention.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to loosen germ laden phlegm, increase secretion and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

METHODIST RALLY HERE BRINGS 2,000 GEORGIA LEADERS

All-Day Meeting Held at Glenn Memorial in Connection With National Church Advance Drive.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
Georgia Methodists from Rabun Gap to Tybee Light were represented yesterday by nearly 2,000 of their leaders at a special all-day meeting in Glenn Memorial Methodist church, one of 82 similar meetings being held this month in key cities of the United States in connection with the Methodist advance movement.

In the afternoon hundreds of ministers and laymen gathered around an altar of consecration in response to an appeal made by Bishop J. L. Decell, of Birmingham, and at the close of the night service young people by the score pledged themselves for a real advance in religious life and service.

Dr. Potts Speaks.
Dr. J. Manning Potts, of Richmond, promotional director, announced the purpose of the advance movement, which was launched by the council of bishops in response to a request of the Kansas City uniting conference last year.

"Such a forward movement should be all-inclusive," said Dr.
Potts, "and should be dynamic, inspirational and educational in nature and method. It should involve a dissemination among our people of information concerning history, genius, theology, polity and program of Methodism."

In the closing hour of the all-day rally Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, spoke on "Youth and the Methodist Advance." James Mackay, of Atlanta, a student at Emory University, spoke as representative of the young people on the theme,
"Methodist Youth Advances."

Youth Takes a Lead.
Bishop Hughes pointed out the trend more and more to recognize youth and give place to youth in the affairs of state and church, and declared that youth is recognized in the Methodist church as never before.

Representing the council of the Bishops of the Methodist church, other bishops present for the all-day rally and delivering addresses were Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf, of Chicago; Bishop H. Lester Smith, of Cincinnati; Bishop Raymond J.
Wade, of Stockholm. Bishop Matthew Clair was also present and presided over the rally-day deliberations for the Negro Methodists at Central Methodist church.

Girl Flyer Is at Home in a Hangar or Ball Room

Miss Helen Roberts, president of the newly formed "Southern Aviatix Association," is equally at home in a hangar or in a ball room—as these pictures prove. One shows her hard at work on the motor of her plane and the other—well, if she wasn't getting ready to go to a dance someone missed an excellent opportunity. Helen likes both flying and dancing.

Women Fliers Form Association To Promote Interest in Aviation

Room in Candler Field Hangar Being Decorated for Headquarters; Student Pilots To Be Taken In and Helped So They Will Continue Interest in Planes.

"Ladybirds" of Atlanta and vicinity, girl fliers who have left the highways for the skyways, have formally organized themselves into a club which is to be known as "The Southern Aviatix Association," and from now on they intend to take their piloting more seriously than ever.

The organization was completed
Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Nell McKee, in Hapeville, and with this in view, club members already have started decorating a room in a Candler field hangar which is to be their headquarters and the scene of their "indoor flights."

"It's not that there has been any real lack of interest on the part of girl pilots," Miss Roberts said,
"but all too often we have found many who took a few lessons, maybe got as far as their solo flight and then dropped out of the picture."

"We feel that this is due to the fact that they didn't know any other girls around the field or perhaps felt out of place among so many men. Then, too, some of them did not know what to study or how to advance their flying, so they just quit. We hope to take in these student pilots as junior members, help them with their ground instruction and keep them enthused about aviation."

Four of the club members are working on their private licenses which require 35 hours of solo flying, a cross-country hop of at least 50 miles with two full stops, an examination on meteorology, navigation and air regulations and a test flight supervised by a government inspector.

FITZGERALD HALL ASSAILS 'PRIVILEGE'

Rail President in Address Declares Principles of Democracy Still Sound.

Fitzgerald Hall, president of the N. C. & St. L. Railroad, last night told 250 members of the Atlanta Chapter of the American Institute of Banking that all the so-called complexities of modern life had no way changed the soundness of the fundamental principles of democracy.

"The man who talks about the necessity of change to adapt government to 'our complex world' times out of ten is a politician whose idea of the proper change is to take more power from the people and put it in his own hand," he said.

Abolish 'Privilege.'
America today, he said, needs to get at the root of its troubles by first abolishing all "privilege."

Let every business, large and small, operate under equal law;
give special privileges to none but an equal chance to all, and the country can save itself without recourse to panaceas," he declared.

The railroad industry as one which had been ruined by restriction and regulation while competing forms of transportation had worked freely and even under government subsidy, he said the only solution to the problem of the rails was to place them on a transportation on an equal footing.

"Take a Chance."
Striking at the philosophy of security as one which would undermine the vitality of any country, he said,

"No man who ever worked only for security was ever worth a whoop to himself or anybody else.
All the progress ever made in this country was made because somebody was willing to take a chance, to risk everything in order to gain everything."

DATES OF TRAINING SET FOR RESERVES
Atlanta Units Will Receive Army Instruction at Three Posts.

Tentative training dates for 21 Georgia reserve units were announced yesterday by fourth corps headquarters of the United States army.

Ten of the groups, including six engineer battalions, two infantry units and a military police battalion, are to be assigned to Fort Benning, Ga. Five others, including two cavalry units, a tank company, a signal company, and a reconnoitering squadron, are to go to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

The assignments and training dates:
FORT BENNING—325th infantry (headquarters at Albany), 423d infantry (light tanks, headquarters at Atlanta), 304th military police battalion (Atlanta), 67th infantry (medium tanks, Atlanta), 603d, 42nd, 36th, 4th, 48th and 45th engineer battalions (Savannah), all July 21 to August 3.

FORT OGLETHORPE—309th cavalry
(Atlanta), June 16-29, and July 21-August 3; 463d reconnoitering squadron (Atlanta), headquarters troop, 63d cavalry division (Atlanta), 463d tank company
(Atlanta), 63d cavalry signal company (Atlanta), all July 21 to August 3.

FORT BARRANCO, Fla.—Headquarters and headquarters company, southern coastal frontier (Atlanta), 67th, 324th, 304th and 202d coast artillery brigades
(Atlanta), September 1-14.

YOUTH CONGRESS OUSTS REDS' FOES

Two Hushed Out of Meeting for Move to Condemn Invasion of Finland.

(Picture on Page 10)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(P)— Two youths who attempted to introduce a resolution "condemning rape of Finland by Soviet Russia" were forcibly ejected from the American Youth Congress.

Stephen McArthur, who said he was a young Democrat from Kearney, N. J., and a member of a bloc attempting to get congress to expel alleged "Communist front" organizations, was the first ejected.

McArthur interrupted an address by Jack McMichael, ministerial student of Quilman, Ga., and chairman of the congress. He was ruled out of order and was hushed down the aisle as delegates booed and hissed.

The second man removed by congress attendants and labor department guards was Peter M.
Tropea, another young Democrat, of Jersey City, N. J.

The meeting was held in the labor department auditorium and was attended by Mrs. Franklin D.
Roosevelt, who has defended the organization against charges that it was Red-dominated.

DOCTORS' COLLEGE TO OPEN SUNDAY

New Surgery Will Be Shown at Florida Meetings.

VENICE, Fla., Feb. 9.—(P)— New surgical developments and methods will be demonstrated and explained at a meeting of the United States Chapter of the International College of Surgeons opening here Sunday.

Surgeons from Canada, Mexico, Cuba, South America and all parts of the United States are expected to attend the four-day assembly in the Florida medical center.

Among the speakers will be Dr.
Temple Fay, of Philadelphia, originator of the "refrigeration" treatment of cancer patients.

SOUTHERN BELL BEGINS $1,080,000 EXPANSION

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Feb. 9.
The Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company launched today what was described by District Manager T. E. Harris as a $1,080,000 expansion program for Montgomery.

Harris announced a contract for $100,000 annex to the company's present plant has been awarded to D. T. Underwood, Birmingham.
Highest cost of the expansion program, which will include installation of a dial system here, will be in equipment, he added.

Bullitt Returns to U. S.

William Bullitt, American ambassador to France, is shown disembarking from a trans-Atlantic Clipper at Baltimore yesterday, followed by Carmel Offie, secretary to the American embassy in Paris.

BULLITT RETURNS, SILENT ON F. D. R.

Envoy to France Will Report in Washington.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9.—(P)— William Bullitt, U. S. ambassador to France, came home by trans-Atlantic clipper today, and in answer to reporters' questions said he had "no comment" on a third term for President Roosevelt.

He denied that he was considering running for the U. S. senate from Pennsylvania, and said he would return to France "within a comparatively short time," after conferring with the President and Secretary Cordell Hull.

The morale of the French "is absolutely magnificent," he said.

Elliott Denies Saying F. D. R. Shouldn't Run

FORT WORTH, Feb. 9.—(P)— Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, denied today having said at Chicago that he thought his father should not seek a third term.
"I was misquoted," Elliott said, adding:

"However, I will say this:
"The only person who can decide such a question as a third term is the President himself, and none of the family should try to make up his mind for him."

"No members of the family have any indication as to how he feels toward the third term question."

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 9.—(P)—
Remember the big freeze of 1940?
Employees of the meter and plum-ing departments have reason to remember it well, judging from the report of Superintendent Marion B. Cooper that 119 meters were frozen, 101 damaged, 227 pipes required thawing, 133 leaks were repaired, three mains were broken and the reservoir was damaged slightly.

At the CITY HALL

Revision of the food handlers' ordinance to require physical examination by city doctors will be one of the best case-finding adjuncts of the municipal health department, Dr. James E. Hackney, assistant city health officer, said yesterday. He explained that hundreds of carriers who otherwise might never be discovered would be spotted and treated under the new method of examinations. The proposal already has the approval of the health and sanitation committee of council and the active support of the Fulton County Medical Society and the Atlanta Association of Better Restaurants.

Dewey L. Johnson, superintendent of city electrical affairs, yesterday spoke at the annual meeting of the Georgia chapter International Association of Electrical Inspectors at Savannah. He explained results of the United States Conference of Mayors and their interest in the national code now in process of preparation.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday turned his attention to the fact that Atlanta, like most other municipalities, is a government by "minorities." "We ought to cast 50,000 votes in every municipal election," he said. "Instead we poll about 25,000 half the number who should vote." He has not yet made up his mind what to do about stimulating interest, but says he is open to suggestions.

Reconstruction of sidewalks on the approaches to the Forsyth street viaduct will be completed in about a month, weather permitting, without any interruption to business, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, announced yesterday. Work on the project was begun early in the week. Under plans now being prepared, the old wooden block paving on Forsyth street from Hunter to Marietta street is to be replaced by modern paving through a WPA project.

Examinations for a successor to the late Wade H. Lassiter, superintendent of bill deliveries and meter readers of the city water department, have been given to four attaches of the department who are seeking a promotion to the vacant position. The results had not been tabulated late yesterday. The examination was prepared by the Atlanta Personnel Board.

Councilman Charles L. Chose-wood, chairman of city council's prisons committee; H. H. Gibson, prison farm superintendent, and Mayor Hartsfield yesterday conferred on plans for erection of a Negro men's new division at the farm. Gibson said the excavations have been held up because of bad weather, but is progressing rapidly now. Renovations and improvements at the farm will cost approximately $40,000, it is estimated.

The city planning commission will use the $3,000 allocated for the purchase of new street signs to inaugurate an extensive and permanent system of street markings, Raymond W. Toras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, said yesterday.
While the amount of money available is not enough to do a complete job, it will be used to supplement signs already erected and which can be replaced as additional funds become available.

MRS. ASHBY BACK FROM AMERICAS

European War Is Wrecking Business, She Declares.

The European war is wrecking South and Central American business, Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, of Atlanta, said yesterday after a six-week tour of Venezuela, Dutch Guiana, Santo Domingo, Haiti, Jamaica, Curacao and Trinidad.
She was informed in the Port of Spain, Trinidad, that business there had fallen off nearly 90 per cent since the war began. She saw much evidence of the war—battleships, bombers and destroyers, she said. The Atlanta traveler made the trip aboard the Norwegian cargo boat, the S. S. Sor-vaugen.

COLLEGE PARK BONDS SOLD AT A PREMIUM

College Park sold its $65,000 bond issue in less than an hour Thursday night, it was reported yesterday by Mayor George W.
Harris, who presided over the sale.
The bonds, which bear 3 per cent interest, brought $71,572.15, which will be used for the purchase of the old Cox college property; the erection of a new high school auditorium and the creation of a civic center.

CLERKS' PAY RAISED BY DEKALB JURY

County Relief Praised; Use of Pardoning Power Is Deplored.

The DeKalb county grand jury yesterday approved salary increases for four county clerks and filed December presentments which praised county relief and deplored "unwarranted use of pardoning power by state officials."

Receiving pay increases were clerks in the offices of the sheriff, clerk of court, ordinary and tax collector. No changes were made in salaries for deputies and other assistants as recommended by Commissioner Scott Candler.

The grand jury, headed by Foreman Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, praised highly the work of the public welfare department in issuing food rations instead of money orders to relief clients, thus decreasing expenditures.

The body supported present-ments of the September grand jury in the objection to the granting of "unwarranted pardons." It also "deplored" the failure of many justices of the peace to present reports of the 1939 dockets.

SOUTH ANSWERS RATE CASE PLEA

Plea of North for Reopening Inquiry Is Challenged.

The Southeastern Governors' Conference yesterday filed an answer to the demand of several northern states that the Interstate Commerce Commission reopen a freight rate case in which the south late last year won an order for parity.

The northern states had asked the I. C. C. to reopen the inquiry on the ground that the rate changes were ordered while the commission was "under political pressure." This was ridiculed in the answer filed yesterday by Judge Edgar Watkins, of Atlanta; J. V. Norman, of Louisville, and Hugh White, of Montgomery, representing the southern group.

In their answer the Southeastern Governors cited the benefits expected to accrue to southern industry and called on the commission to dismiss the petition from the northern states. "The I. C. C. has given no indication that it plans to go into the old case and it is understood that the railroads now are putting the lowered rates into effect."

U.S. AND NEUTRALS GET TOGETHER ON RESTORING PEACE

Sumner Welles Will Go to Europe for Purpose of Advising President on Present Conditions.

By ANDRUE BERDING.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(P)—The United States government took long steps toward peace in Europe today by announcing the opening of conversations with neutral nations desiring the "eventual restoration of world peace on a sound and lasting basis" and by directing Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles to go to Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain for information.

Secretary Hull announced that informal conversations had begun with neutrals relating "to a sound international economic system" and to "world-wide reduction of armaments." He carefully excluded "matters involving present war conditions."

Can Be Extended.
The conversations, he said, will probably be continued with all neutral governments and "can, of course, be extended to belligerent nations in so far as they involve these two common problems of future peace."

(London and Paris, however, greeted with cool reserve the announcement that the United States has undertaken world peace talks with other neutral nations and there was considerable skepticism as to the outcome of President Roosevelt's initiative, according to the United Press.)

President Roosevelt announced at his press conference that Welles would go to Europe "solely for the purpose of advising the President and the secretary of state as to present conditions" there.

He added that Welles would, of course, be authorized to make no proposals or commitments in the name of the government of the United States.

Welles will sail February 17 for Italy aboard the Italian liner Rex. At the state department it was emphasized that there was no connection between Welles' trip and the informal conversations commenced with neutral governments.

Approving Comments.
The announcement brought several approving comments from senators, although there was some criticism also. The reaction ranged from a statement by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, that it was a "very wise appointment" to a warning from Senator Johnson, Republican, California, that "We ought to mind our own business."

Official circles in London heard of the development "with satisfaction" and it was stated that Welles would be given all available information. A government spokesman at Berlin said the news from Washington was "very interesting" but that no further comment could be made immediately because the purpose of Welles' trip "is not clear."

(French government quarters said they were extremely doubtful that Welles' European survey trip would result in any United States offer of mediation in the war, the United Press said.) Secretary Hull added, "It should be emphasized that these conversations involve no plan or plans but are in the nature of preliminary inquiries..."

APPEAL FOR FUNDS

important development in the Balkan theater after that meeting proves to be the Turkish action to end German economic influence and to close German propaganda outlets in Turkey.

What seems obvious is that Turkey must have been assured at that conference that any German move to shatter the peace of the Balkans, either alone or in co-operation with Russia, was unlikely. Although the Belgrade conference avoided taking sides openly in the Allied-German war, its trend was definitely toward a united front against possible Russian aggression. Moreover, there was at least a hint at Belgrade that such an attitude had German approval despite the "friendship" between Berlin and Moscow.

Military Aloofness
It is significant also that Berlin has taken steps to reassert complete military aloofness from Russia's attack on Finland just at this time. Formal denials of any military commitments in connection with the Moscow-Berlin deal over partition of Poland have been repeated in Berlin. They probably were intended to apply as much to a possible Russian drive against Rumania, or against Turkey to crack the Dardanelles, as to the Russo-Finnish conflict.

In any event, despite developments in Turkey that might seem to foreshadow an Allied effort to carry the war into the Black Sea and the Balkans, there are many angles suggesting to military observers that no such development is actually impending, unless Russia precipitates it. The Allied

Hospital and Police Rules Bar Man Dying in Taxi

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(P)—Joseph Siegel, 38, died today in front of a police station while he sought in vain to enter the hospital which for five years he had served as an orderly.

His death bed was the rear seat of a taxicab. In the immediate investigation that followed, Dr. S. S. Goldwater, the city commissioner of hospitals, concluded that the tragic blunder was made by a harassed night nurse—name withheld—at the admitting desk in the psychopathic division of Bellevue.

As Taxicab Driver John Forney told the story, he was hailed at 96th street early this morning by Siegel, who groaned:

"I'm desperately ill. Drive me to Bellevue as fast as you can. For God's sake, I'm dying."

Reaching the hospital, Forney ran to the admitting desk, but was told by an attendant, he said, that Siegel must be accompanied by a policeman. The fare, meanwhile, lay moaning in the cab and Forney appealed for help to the first patrolman he saw.

But, he said, the policeman responded that he couldn't do anything because he wasn't assigned to Bellevue. Forney drove to police precinct station, and a lieutenant ordered an ambulance. It was then that Siegel's heart stopped. The autopsy showed it was hardening of the arteries.

Eight Vessels Destroyed—Nazis
BERLIN, Feb. 9.—(P)—The DNB, official German news agency, announced tonight that German planes raiding English shores earlier today had sunk or destroyed eight ships, including two British patrol boats, an estimated loss of 15,000 tons of shipping.

Nazis Arrest Leading Czechs
PRAGUE, Feb. 9.—(P)—Reliable authorities said tonight that German authorities had placed between 500 and 600 leading Czech personalities in "protective custody."

Prominent among those arrested were Joseph Thruhar, leader of the Sokol organization (national Czech patriotic movement); Premysl Samal, former chancellor of Czechoslovakia under the presidency of Jan Masaryk, and approximately 120 former Czech army officers, mostly residents of Prague.

Turkey Strikes Again at Nazis
ISTANBUL, Feb. 9.—(P)—Turkey today struck her second blow in as many days against Germany, her allies of the World War, in swift action, which authoritative sources laid to exposure of a widespread Nazi plot for sabotage and terrorism in the Near East.

One hundred German technicians were ousted from their jobs in the war and naval ministries and given 48 hours to quit the country after the Red army for the occupation of the German-owned Krupp shipyards on the Golden Horn.

Authoritative military sources here tonight reported that evidence has reached the Turkish government that Soviet Russia is pushing construction of fortifications on her Caucasian frontier with Turkey, to defend her oil fields from any Anglo-French-Turkish attack. Several hundred thousand workers have been drafted by the Red army for the building of defense lines and military roads, these reports said. Other authoritative sources said

Paris Deputies Talk Secretly
PARIS, Feb. 9.—(P)—The chamber of deputies seized initiative from the Daladier government today and held a secret session, as demanded by the opposition, on "the organization of national defense."

The secret session, split by a three-hour recess, adjourned at 7:30 in the evening and will be resumed at 9:30 tomorrow. Daladier accepted the closed session—the first in 22 years—and called upon the chamber to give his government a free hand to prosecute the war against Germany or to overthrow it for another cabinet.

Daladier himself brought into the open assertions that the French authorities had raided German offices of the Gestapo (German secret police) and uncovered plans for widespread espionage activities aimed at de-

the Turkish government has uncovered evidence of a network of Nazi agents throughout the Near East ready on a signal from Berlin to sabotage communications and precipitate a reign of terror.

Rumania attempted to keep a balance in her delicate position between the two sides in the European conflict by creating a new ministry under Ion Cristu. Cristu, a Bucharest foreign office official, formerly in charge of economic negotiations with other countries, will attempt the seemingly impossible task of satisfying conflicting economic demands of Germany and the Allies.

British Sink Two U-Boats

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(P)—British fighting planes, their guns spraying lead, shot down another Nazi ship bomber, damaged two more, and scattered still others out to sea today to claim victory in the fourth series of skyfights in 12 days.

It was announced officially tonight that two German submarines had been destroyed by a British destroyer.

Lack of Indian Compromise To Increase Load of Britain

England's Danger Lies in Red Effort To Spread Communist Doctrines by Taking Advantage of Nationalist Ferment, Writes Dewitt MacKenzie.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.
The fresh failure of the government of India and the great nationalist party to reach a compromise on the demand for independence is bound to increase the burden of England, especially in view of the constantly recurring reports of Russian ambitions to Sovietize Hindustan.

Of these two problems by far the greater, it seems to me, must relate to the internal situation of India. The Red threat to England exists, as it has ever since Bolshevism came into being, but Britain's danger lies not so much in any military thrust as in an effort to spread the Communist doctrines by taking advantage of the nationalist ferment.

England has to thank a curious paradoxical situation for keeping the political lid from blowing off in India. Mohandas Gandhi, aging and frail little nationalist leader, is himself acting as a restraining influence on his followers, not a few of whom would like to take advantage of Britain's preoccupation in the war to push their cause.

One of the greatest difficulties in this situation lies in the religious differences. The great majority of the nationalists are Hindus. The Moslem minority charges that the Hindus are out to establish domination over India. The British say that there is a very real danger of precipitating a bitter war between these elements in trying to reach a settlement of the demands for self-government.

IS AMERICA SAFE

That's the big question before Congress today. And before every patriotic American.

What are the chances of our being attacked by a European invader? Or an Asiatic enemy? Or both? And how well prepared are we to resist such an invasion?

With the Army and Navy both asking Congress for back-breaking appropriations this year, Mr. Average Taxpayer wants the facts...And THIS WEEK

MAGAZINE has commissioned ace-reporter Frazier Hunt to gather them for you, in three enlightening, and startling, articles.

The first, coming Sunday, takes Uncle Sam's Navy apart, and shows how it ticks. The following week he does the same to the Air Force. And the third week, it's our Army.

HIGH FINANCE CASE RETURNS TO COURT

Bankrupt Seeks To Prevent Garnishment Suits; Credit Managers Testify.

The affairs of one Richard E. Jones bobbed up again yesterday to echo in federal district court some of the high financing which gave many Atlanta businessmen a big headache back in the spring of 1936.

Jones, a Negro insurance salesman, in less than two months' time ran up bills on Atlanta merchants totaling approximately $2,800. Then, on December 1, 1936, he took voluntary bankruptcy.

Yesterday he was back in federal court seeking an injunction to restrain four of the companies he owed from suing him in the state courts and getting garnishments on his salary.

A veritable parade of credit managers of the stores Jones owed took the witness stand before Judge E. Marvin Underwood to explain how they had happened to let the Negro insurance salesman have so much credit. Lawyers David Gershon, George Brannon, and Tally Kirkland contended that Jones misrepresented facts in securing credit and therefore sought to sue the Negro in state courts despite the bankruptcy action.

Credit manager after credit manager testified they asked Jones about other accounts in the city but under close questioning by Judge Underwood they said they had not asked Jones what his debts were or how much he owed.

"If not telling how much you owe when applying for credit constitutes an offense, I'm afraid I've broken the law a number of times," the judge commented. The injunction petition was continued until Monday.

Help for Finns

Finland, just at the moment, is winning a series of battles—defensive battles. Two Russian divisions have been wiped out by encircling operations and apparently two others are in precarious positions, although not yet eliminated. On the Karelian Isthmus concentrated attacks have failed to advance Red lines.

This is all well and good. Quite as it should be. But it also means Finnish troops have been in front line service without interruption for more than two months, and that of a maximum of 400,000 men, probably one in every 20, or more, has been either killed or wounded thus far and the pressure has not and will not lessen. The loss of four Russian divisions is of small consequence when reserves of more than 75 divisions are available. It means simply this unceasing pressure will continue, and deepen, with the coming of better weather. There is no chance that Finnish troops can seize the offensive, other than in comparatively minor engagements. They therefore must be content to stand against these successive waves of assaults, first here and then there.

If Finland is to be saved, there must be reinforcements within a very few months. Splendid soldier that he is, the Finn cannot stand up under front line service in modern warfare forever; he must be relieved, and the only relief possible is by troops of other nations. They cannot be raw recruits—there is not that much time. They must be seasoned soldiers, backed with every resource of modern conflict, able to carry an offensive into Russian soil and able to effectively destroy the communications which are so vital to the Russian troops. They must be able to seize the naval bases from which Russia expects during the summer to blockade Finland while her troops drive across to the Gulf of Bothnia.

Above all, there must be planes and more planes. Bombers for offensive operations deep behind Russian lines. Pursuits to stop for once and all this wanton, brutal, senseless shattering of Finnish towns and the innocent women and children, and the wounded, supposedly safe under the Red Cross of international mercy.

These planes do not have to be the most modern—obsolete American planes are far superior to the Russian equipment. But they do have to be furnished in great quantity. Italy's 50 carloads about which there has been much excitement are but a drop in the bucket in comparison to the number needed to bog down the Russian offensive. Fifty carloads mean perhaps 40 planes, hardly more. Then there are 44 on the way from the United States. The Italian planes probably are bombers, in which branch the Italians excel after their experience in Ethiopia and Spain. The American ships are pursuit and reconnaissance—the best going. But thousands are needed to seize command of the air.

There is a hint in the deliberations of the Allied War Council that the needs of Finland have at last been recognized in full scope, and that now something substantial will be accomplished. British recruiting for Finnish service immediately was opened, a fact let through the veil of censorship, but with no hint of the method that recruiting might take. Italian "recruiting" in the Spanish war strangely enough comprised war strength units with regular army equipment and officers of that establishment. History has a quaint habit of repeating itself, and men learn from the experiences and tricks of other wars and other days.

About these two leading women who have claims on John Barrymore, we suppose the square thing would be for John to let them have a profile apiece.

A sociologist views with alarm our increasing population of morons. On the other hand, the candidates will be along shortly, gazing out over the broad sea of our intelligent faces.

The Filipino brother in his new budget shows a tidy surplus, but we must be patient. He just lacks experience in the ways of free peoples.

Curious circumstance, noted by the Spectator (London): "Whereas before the war there were 63 inmates of Paris lunatic asylums who thought they were Hitler there are now only 12."

By shaking up the cabinet every so often, Tokyo gets the moral effect of a Chinese bombing, but without the loose plaster.

Earned Promotions

The promotion of Dillard B. Lasseter from state National Youth Administrator to deputy national administrator of that agency is substantial recognition of a job well done.

No small part of Georgia's future has been forged in the work of the Georgia NYA, along trails that were new, yet sound. It is in this state that much of the national program has been fashioned under the direction of Mr. Lasseter in such a manner that the Georgia work has merited the acclaim of all America as a model for similar programs everywhere. It was the heart and the genius of this one man that guided the growth of an organization within the state in which the most noteworthy feature is the intense enthusiasm and tremendous devotion of the personnel to the ideal of service to underprivileged and handicapped youth.

It has not been an easy task. He has had to combat prejudice. He has had to have courage to chart new paths of service under ever-critical eyes. He has had to make a dollar go where two never before had ventured. These are the qualities he takes to Washington at a time when they are needed there more than ever before.

The acting state administrator, Boileau Jones, has been Mr. Lasseter's associate for more than three years, and in that capacity has gained an intimate knowledge of the work and of the character that has been instilled in the organization. No small part of the success of the NYA in this state has been due to this work.

A Republican Idea!

The congressional bill that sent Admiral Byrd to the south polar regions to discover some more land for Uncle Sam has given the Republicans an idea—a rare occurrence. They're going to rediscover the south. They've heard there are votes on "them" that plantations" and so they plan to follow in grandpappy's shoes and nose around to see if there is anything worth taking.

A Republican of the old school, for the benefit of those who haven't had the pleasure, is a strange creature. He believes in God and high tariffs; fears no man except a voter of the right persuasion; has a peculiar penchant for picking nonentities for high position; a distinct habit of permitting Tea Pot Dome episodes; a tender spot for the mid-western farmer, and hang the others; an even more tender spot for sheep ranchers and cattle raisers; a weakness for slogans of the "chicken in every pot" variety, and a deep affection for rivers and harbors—together with the public plunder that goes with them.

Now the southern farmer is about to be burdened with the deep attention of 46 of this variety, congressmen all, who intend spending their own money (a new political wrinkle) to find out what makes Dixie agriculture tick. The visit is tagged "a sincere, non-partisan effort to learn the true facts of the southern farm problem without any third-degree methods or effort to stir up anti-New Deal sentiment."

That third-degree crack reveals that the Republicans have a long, if slightly guilty, memory. The last great invasion of gentry of that party dates back some time ago, when grandpappy, too, heard of the southern farmer and solicitously brought along a bit of luggage to look things over "to learn the true facts." If memory serves correctly, that luggage was known far and wide as a "carpetbag."

The southern farmer can expect from the Republican party when it is in power, if ever, exactly the same consideration he has been shown by that party in the past—the scraps from the table. If any benefits derive to him, it will be because the chief beneficiary will be the mid-western wheat, corn and dairy interests. Republican farm solicitude rests solely in those areas, a sop to agricultural America for the tremendous penalties imposed by the high tariff grabbing of the party and its chief backers.

When Republican politicians spend their own money to visit the south—look out! The luggage may be different but the owner hasn't changed. "De wahl" may be over but the Republicans linger on.

This is the decennial year, and time to dust off an old one about the country coming to its census.

Once there was a musician who mislaid his music, but played anyway. If this isn't how swing was born, we'll think up another.

Editorial of the Day

IN REVERSE

(From the Springfield, Ohio, Sun.)

It will be remembered that in the fable a monkey undertook to divide a piece of cheese between two cats. He broke it in two, weighed the pieces, and finding one piece heavier than the other, bit a little off it and weighed the pieces again. This time the other piece was the heavier and when he took a bite from it it left the first piece too heavy again.

Something like this, in reverse, tends to take place when the government begins to help specific industries. The processes began in this country with the protective tariff to foster infant manufacturing enterprises. It has gone on and spread from that time to this. In every case a situation has developed such as L. J. Taber, National Grange master, declares now exists. He says that federal benefits to agriculture fail to compensate for increased cost and handicaps placed on the government.

The story giving an account of this statement does not say whether Mr. Taber mentioned these costs and handicaps in detail or not, but it may be taken for granted they are found in legislation intended to benefit other industries or the workers in them.

If the government again tries to equalize the situation by increasing the benefits to agriculture, there will be heard a new demand from other forms of industry that this means new costs and handicaps for them for which the benefits now being received fail to compensate them.

In the fable the process went on until the monkey had eaten all of the cheese. Just how this reverse process of trying to equalize conditions for all industries by adding first to the benefits of one and then to the benefits of another will eventually work out, nobody knows, but just how it can eventually bring general satisfaction to everybody it is not easy to see.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CONGRESS IN COUNTERMOVE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The sudden congressional enthusiasm with economy has hoisted the President with his own hand. To put it bluntly, the President misjudged the reaction of congress to a choice between levying new taxes, cutting down expenditures or raising the debt limit. He expected the congress, confronted by these dreadful alternatives in an election year, to put on a panoramic exhibition of moral, intellectual and political bankruptcy.

There being no more than the normal amount of love between the President and congress, he presented his three-pronged budget message with every sign of pleasure. Thereupon Senators Pat Harrison, Charles McNary and James F. Byrnes, Representatives Joseph Martin, Clifford A. Woodrum and certain other congressional leaders formed a resolution to give the President a little of his own medicine.

Though he spoke strongly for economy in his budget message, the President still partly adheres to the New Dealer's spending theories. If congress had to take one of his alternatives, he would have preferred to see new taxes levied or the debt limit raised. But members of congress have been hearkening to the "no more spending" cries from back home. Despite the enormous pressure groups crying for additional appropriations, they chose to try to economize even harder than the President had suggested they should.

BUDGETARY LOOPHOLES Cuts in appropriations dear to the President's heart have already brought intimations of strong displeasure from the White House. Probably the house cuts in the agricultural estimates will be partly restored in the senate, under the joint pressure of the President, the Agriculture Department and the farm lobby. But the President must expect to see this restoration more than compensated for by huge reductions in the appropriations for national defense.

These goings on have already blown up a wind in which certain surprising straws may be discerned. As yet the New Deal spenders have not formed ranks, to storm the White House for a reversal of the budget message's recommendations. They may never do so. But the fact that they regard the congressional economies as economically unwise, plus the fact that they know the President, reacting to congress, may be more likely to favor them, decidedly adds up to the possibility of another spending row.

The President himself left large loopholes in the budget through which he can escape from his economies. He specifically stated that the agricultural estimate, now reduced still further, had been brought down to a point where it would have to depend on the continuance of good business. He made the same exception in connection with the WPA estimate, which was placed at the record low of $1,000,000,000. While Secretary Wallace of agriculture himself loudly complains of the congressional economizing at his expense, underlings in the WPA are already talking of the need for more money, while a group of the younger men at PWA have actually prepared a $200,000,000 public works bill.

END OF DEFEATISM Meanwhile, New Dealers read into the President's recent statement boasting of increased national income and pooh-poohing the fears of budget-balancers what they call an "end of defeatism." Although they have gone along the New Deal, they have regarded the President's tendency to concede domestic issues during the war crisis as distinctly defeatist. They have murmured against it in private, wondering whether "everything" was going to be "sacrificed."

The President, in talks with the New Dealers, has reassured them by promising that if congress should press him too hard, he will fight back. The places named as dangerous pressure points were such reforms as the national labor relations act, and such matters of basic economic policy as the budget.

All this may be taken as indicating the possibility of another big row between the President and congress. If the President fights, congress would like nothing better than to fight back. The Republicans have been languishing for such an opportunity, and the Conservative Democrats long for the White House to supply a challenge which could close their ranks.

This very fact, however, prevents the possibility from becoming a probability. The President is a canny enough politician not to start a row when he knows it will benefit the other fellow.

The I. R. A. In England.

It has been my impression, all along, that this so-called "Irish Republican Army," whose members attempt acts of terrorism in England, are merely the British equivalent to that group of "Christian Frontiers" in New York who were recently arrested after FBI investigation, and similar fanatics.

The I. R. A. must be composed of irrational creatures who would probably be engaged in other vicious underworld activities if they weren't trying to blow up post offices in Ireland for no other purpose for the "cause of Irish freedom," the very argument is absurd. The government of Eire is as eager to stamp them out as is the government of Britain, and only the North of Ireland couldn't condone such criminal acts.

If you believe in capital punishment at all, the two men responsible for the Coventry bombing which killed five persons last August, deserved the hanging which was their lot on Wednesday last. At least, according to British jurisprudence, murder is murder and can be paid for only one way. That it is a pretty good system is proven by the rarity of murders in England.

We Were There.

However, all that is preliminary to the remark that the wife and I were in England last August 25, the date of the Coventry bombing. And the reaction of the people among whom we were was just about the same you would find in the United States.

Sympathy for the innocent victims and their families. Horror against the perpetrators, at that time unidentified. Fascination in a sensational piece of news. And a deep disgust at the I. R. A. (Just prior to that the I. R. A. had become rather amusing.)

The first evidence of I. R. A. activity we saw in England was on the day we landed. We had come ashore, off the Aquitania, at Southampton, traveled to London by the boat train and taxicabbed across London from Waterloo Station to Euston Station. Having an hour or so to wait for our train to Liverpool, we decided to check baggage. At the checkroom there was a notice that all baggage must be opened for inspection before it could be accepted. Because a few days previously some I. R. A. criminal had checked a bag with a bomb inside, which had blown up, well, wrecked the particular checkroom and had killed a couple of innocent bystanders.

However, our baggage was covered with steamship labels and was self-evidently American. So the attendant said, inasmuch as we had only landed off the Aquitania a few hours before, it wasn't necessary to open our stuff.

Next indirect contact with the I. R. A. was when I went into an English post office to mail some letters. The mail slots inside the post office were covered with boards. I was told to mail my letters in a box out on the street. The idea was that a bomb in a small letter box wouldn't cause the damage one inside a building, a post office, would.

Premature Bomb. While we were there one I. R.

A man had an accident, unfortunately for him. It was a Saturday night, in Liverpool. There had been one of those attempted bombings of mail boxes. Futility things that did practically no damage. The bombers simply tossed a quite ineffectual, home-made bomb at the mail box as they drove by in a car.

However, a little later, crowds on Lime street noticed smoke issuing from the pocket of a raincoat worn by a youthful sidewalk stroller. At the same moment the youth himself discovered his predicament. He tore off the raincoat and threw it into the street, where there was a muffled explosion that did no harm.

The lad was promptly arrested by a couple of Bobbies on duty nearby, but, realizing it was one of the would-be terrorists of the I. R. A., the Saturday night crowd became somewhat threatening. So the Bobbies sent for a patrol wagon to transport their prisoner to the jail on Dale street.

By the time the wagon arrived the crowd had become bigger and worse. After the prisoner was in the wagon, they tipped it over on its side. But the Bobbies got him safely, if somewhat disheveled, away. A couple of days later he was arraigned and held for trial.

Just Sporadic.

Those were all the evidence of I. R. A. we saw or heard in England. You mustn't get the idea that this group of outlaws is really serious. Much worse things, on the line of sabotage, happened in the United States during the first World War.

About all the I. R. A. does is provide an occasional newspaper story and kill an occasional innocent bystander. But they are a pest, at that.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Wednesday, February 10, 1915:

"Delegates from every section of the state are arriving for the seventeenth annual state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution which convenes today."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Monday, February 10, 1890:

"The Times says that Brunswick's northern mail reaches the city one day behind time. The Constitution, however, gets there on time and in consequence Brunswick can't get left on the news of the world."

Turk Upsets Dope.

Turkey in the snow isn't nearly as common as turkey in the straw and so Thomas Odham, Tulsa, Okla., investigated when he saw a 12-pound hen with only its head protruding from a snow bank.

Under the hen were five eggs and seven turkey poult. The eggs were frozen and four of the seven offspring froze to death before they could be sheltered, but the hen is doing nicely, thank you.

Farmer Arthur Gowen, on whose land the incident occurred, said he had been raising turkeys for eight years and this was the first time a hen had hatched eggs in winter.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Melancholy NEW YORK, Developments Feb. 9.—Eight thousand friends and neighbors of Ellis Parker, the celebrated hick detective, had signed a petition for a presidential pardon before he died last Sunday in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., the Grotto of the prison system, where he was serving six years for kidnaping and torturing an innocent man to compel him to confess to the Lindbergh murder. It is now intended to pursue the matter, anyway, so that Parker's honor may be restored posthumously if there be any legal precedent for such a stroke.

This is another of those melancholy developments which give rise to despair that public officers in the United States ever will be held to a decent standard of honesty and responsibility. Parker was an intelligent man who often made boast of his cunning, and the crime for which he was sent to prison was the more vicious because he was a trusted peace officer with a national reputation attributable in large part to the enthusiasm and, it may be, the glibness of metropolitan reporters.

Publicity Many another man whom Parker himself put away for offenses which were trivial by comparison is still in prison, and the proof presented in Parker's trial that he was a treacherous faker obsessed with an ambition to get convictions regardless, and thus swell his cheap little record in the United States ever will be held to a decent standard of honesty and responsibility. Parker was a strutting, publicity loving pet of the press who made a specialty of picturesqueness, and the very fact that Parker was convicted of the man's guilt was equal to at least one strike, if not two, on a defendant in the courts in which he practiced. But if he would resort to kidnaping and torture to break down one innocent man, he was not fit to be the electric chair as a sacrifice to his ambition, he may have faked evidence and extorted confessions from many others before he was caught in the act and convicted.

He was a loner in his investigation, distrustful of other peace officers, some of whom, no doubt, were dumb or venal, or both, but consideration should be given to the probability that he worked alone the better to plant evidence or frame witnesses. Some of the genuinest stacks of newspaper clippings and possibly some pickings for ghosted pieces under his name.

He Chose In view of all the facts it is plain that The Way Parker deliberately chose to sacrifice his own honor, that he suffered no injustice but, on the contrary, got off much better than some of the dumb, blundering ignoramuses whom he sent away for longer terms in much worse prisons, and that a pardon after death or any other gesture of condonation or forgiveness would be a sneer at the half-forgotten ideal of decency in public life.

Pardons are for men who have been convicted by mistake, or, having done their time, rehabilitated themselves by going straight. Parker was guilty, and he hadn't finished his term which wasn't half of what he deserved, and a pardon, if one is issued, will be only a dirty political document granted for the satisfaction of dirty politicians who made a political issue of the Lindbergh case.

Birds Know.

It is a healthy appetite and not a love for bovine company that is taking thousands of starlings, a southern bird, to the Kansas cattle lands this winter.

Invading the state for the first time in the memory of many a cattleman, the starlings strike terror into cattle herds and have caused some stampedes as they dig into cow hides for warbles, the grub of a fly that lies under the fur of cattle during winter months.

The birds start swiftly for cows and sink their sharp beaks far into their hides, apparently causing great pain. Experts say there is little the cattlemen can do except to keep their herds under guard and frighten the birds away.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

MR. DUNLAP REPLIES Mr. Edgar Dunlap, successful manager of Senator Walter F. George's campaign in the summer of the great purge, and now manager of the presidential primary committee in Georgia, has presented his reply to certain queries.

As to the pamphlet carrying pictures of Senator George, Eugene Talmadge, Vice President John N. Garner, Thomas W. Hardwick and Mr. Dunlap himself, he writes:

"I thank you for your compliment on our excellent pamphlet. I am delighted it has attracted your attention, as it has people throughout the state. In the first three days we received 2,500 replies, and expect before the end of the week 10,000 Georgians will have demanded by petition or card a primary."

Mr. Dunlap declares the Democrats of Georgia are "paying for it," writing:

"Frankly, I am glad you asked the question, 'Who's paying for it?', for it will call attention to the committee's immediate need of money in getting the facts to the people. We have to pay in advance for radio time and have to pay cash for stamps, and unless we get sufficient contributions we will bog down. We secured the cheapest half hour we could get on radio and it costs $144 each speech and we have to raise this money a week ahead of time. However, I have every confidence the people are interested in knowing the truth and will aid us in presenting the facts throughout the state, but in answer to your direct question—the committee hoped to use the money to finance its activities for a presidential primary through and by direct subscriptions from the Democrats of Georgia. The finances for the entire campaign will be secured in the same manner as money was secured in 1936 for the primary of that year . . . and in the same manner funds are raised for the party throughout the country."

"I sincerely hope the initial expense will be reimbursed and our creditors paid. You may rest assured, however, there will be no state tax money used, no CIO, GOP, or Liberty League gifts accepted. The money will be raised from Georgians."

MR. DUNLAP, CONTINUED Mr. Dunlap, continuing, denies any tie-up with Vice President

Jack Garner, saying:

"The whole and sole purpose of the committee is to secure a primary. This committee has no candidate and no program other than securing a presidential primary. . . . The people should decide. . . . They have a right to vote for the person of their choice whether it be President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner, Secretary Hull, Postmaster General Farley or Administrator McNutt."

"Our attack is on the expressed announcement of certain officers of the state Democratic committee that they would not call a primary but that the Rivers-controlled committee will select a delegation controlled by him. The purpose of this committee is not 'anti' any individual except those who oppose a primary; it is not 'pro' any candidate, it is pro-primary, and for the life of me I cannot understand why 'the powers that be' do not want the people to express themselves. . . . We are not trying to buy a primary. We want them to give us one."

"As to luxurious headquarters, we have not yet opened them, but we do hope to establish headquarters as soon as the money is available. We hope to open headquarters in Atlanta at an early date. . . . At present we are answering our mail from Gainesville. . . . The fact the chairman of the committee supports this or that man . . . does not color the purpose of the committee. We believe we are right and the people are with us. . . . the people themselves are asked to pay for the activities. . . ."

"THE INS AND OUTS" As a veteran of Barnesville, in the trenches with Mr. Dunlap, I recall Mr. Dunlap's fervent pleas for money in that hot summer. It would be interesting to know how much out-of-state money is being used this winter.

Also, one might ask how it is possible for Governor Rivers to control a committee of responsible Georgians of the type which would be appointed? I would not so impugn their integrity. One also might wonder why these voices, silent with four exceptions for 30 years, now are so active and so determined to have a primary.

One also might ask if the past history of instructed delegations following preferential primaries in Georgia is not an unhappy and unfortunate history. There still is, in all this, the sound of an ax being ground. Perhaps two axes.

I think, however, Editor Quimby Melton, of the Griffin News, expressed it best as follows:

"Politics is a very funny thing. 'Today the ins in state politics are denying the people of Georgia the right to hold a presidential preference primary and the 'outs' are representing the 'dear people' and demanding the primary."

"Back in 1936 the present 'ins' were 'out' and the present 'outs' were 'in.' Then the 'ins,' now the 'outs,' were denying the right to hold the primary and finally called a primary but put the entrance fee at $10,000. Governor Eugene Talmadge was the head of the 'ins' then and Governor Rivers was the head of the 'outs.' . . . The fact the chairman of the committee supports this or that man . . . does not color the purpose of the committee. We believe we are right and the people are with us. . . . the people themselves are asked to pay for the activities. . . ."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

Some years ago a banker wrote an article for the Saturday Evening Post and introduced his argument by exposing the economic ignorance of his little girl.

The kid was eight years old, as I recall it, and she hadn't yet made contact with reality. One day she decided to write a sad story, and this was her opening paragraph:

"I am starving, nurse," cried the poor little girl; "call the chauffeur and let us take a ride in the park."

Starvation and a chauffeur seemed an improbable combination at the time, but now it seems to be a tragic but rather ordinary fact.

For several weeks I have watched, with increasing anxiety, your development of that sneaking and dreadfully tyrannical malady called "nerves." You are always on edge. You jerk and mumble in your sleep. You weep or blow up like a firecracker if anybody crooks a finger at you. And you are slipping at school because you can't concentrate on your studies.

I was mystified at first, for a girl's nervous system is so much more delicate and complicated than a boy's and there seemed no reason for such goings on. But I have been watching you more closely, and now I have run the villain to earth.

You are starving. I know it sounds crazy, but it's true. And the very thought of such outrageous folly would make me pull my hair if I had any.

We feel pity and shame when we read of starving Chinese eating grass roots, tree bark and even clay to stop the dreadful gnawing of hunger; but we feel more like swearing when the victim of starvation is a girl in a fur coat, decorated with gold jewelry.

You live on "things you like"—sweet crackers and pickles and such junk, and you simply aren't getting enough fuel to keep going.

I know what Doc will do. He'll give you the right vitamins and this new nicotinic acid he's found for warblers, but I'm not going to him till I fill you up with milk and whole-wheat bread and meat and potatoes and fruit and fresh vegetables. I don't want to be jailed for starving you.

Girls are angelic things, my dear. But they'll be sure enough angels if they don't come down to earth and eat like good animals. Love, DAD.

Bogotanos Rush In and Out Of Places, Spalding Finds

Today Jack Spalding, wearying of the ever-present fleas makes plans to visit Quito, 1,000 miles away. The airline being booked solidly for a month, Jack meets a former U. S. taxi driver and a deal is made. A 1,000-mile trip over the Andes by taxi is quite a jaunt and Spalding looks forward to the trip with pleasure.

By JACK SPALDING.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Thursday, Feb. 9.—(By Mail.) There are a lot of things about Bogota that will be hard to forget. One is the difficulty of reaching the place, another the trouble of getting out. It took 12 days, most of them stuck on sandbars in the Magdalena river, to get here from the coast. It took three days for Grace & Company to make up their minds to announce there won't be a vacancy on the Quito plane for a month.

But we want to get to Quito. Mail is waiting for us there. It is a thousand miles away, up and down Andes and through country that the Creator hasn't put the finishing touches on yet.

There is a road of sorts that leads in that direction. The government has been working on it since the days of the Conquest and has finally brought it to the point where it is passable in the dry season.

To Quito by Taxi.

So we are going to Quito by taxi. It's the only thing to do. After two days' search we finally found a cab driver who was willing to try the trip for a nominal sum in United States currency.

"Ain't you American?" he asked in fine colloquial English after a few moments' argument over the price in bad Spanish.

"Hell, boss," said he, "we'll get through to Quito if I break every spring in this automobile. I'm one Colombian who ain't afraid to travel. I drove a taxi in New York ten years. Besides, I'd like to see Quito myself."

So Monday morning we taxi to Quito. We've been told that the trip will take five days on the road plus a week's rest afterward. But at its worst it can't be as bad as the trip up the river, and if things go all right, taxi-ing through the Andes should be a novel experience. Hannibal had the Alps and elephants; we've got the Andes and a cab. It's either that or spending four more weeks in Bogota, a fate worse than death.

Public Stamped.

Leaving Bogota will be a pleasure. While we like Bogotanos singly or in groups of two, in the mass they stamped. With nowhere to go and nothing to do, they charge down sidewalks, pushing each other, and us, into gutters, the sides of passing street cars and buildings. Coming out of churches and theaters they all reach the door at the same time and stick there, sweating, toiling, panting, grunting and digging with their elbows. Women are the worst offenders.

At the sight of an elevator they riot. People waiting to go up don't wait for those who came down to get off, but charge in the second the door is opened, meeting the outgoing tide face to face. For a minute it looks like the immovable object and irresistible force argument will be settled, but eventually something happens, nobody knows what, and the people who want to go up get in and those who came down get out. All get considerably battered.

There is a story here of a timid American wife who when she first came to Bogota, spent half an hour riding up and down in an elevator before she pretends to faint and was carried out. She now carries a hatpin in her handbag and has no trouble.

And then there are fleas, who we have come to associate with our friends the police. Like convicts, foreigners in Colombia are always surrounded by little booklets with their pictures in them, which they must produce for stamping and checking whenever they wish to do anything. When we arrived in Bogota we spent hours in the police station picking up fleas while we checked in with the authorities.

For permission to leave the country, we had to drop by the income tax office (flealess), get a little blue paper saying we were at peace with the treasury and owed them nothing, and then ask the consent of the police to travel. They gave us permission to move on to Cali where we must check in again. Presumably the police in Cali give us permission to move on to the next town, and so on, ad nauseam, until we cross the border into Ecuador. There we hope for better luck as regards both the fleas and the police. We will say, however, that while the fleas stop at nothing the police are polite.

In addition to police stations, fleas in Bogota flourish in theaters, coffee shops and taxis, wherever humanity and anything resembling upholstery come together.

The only effective relief is to get into a full tub with a bar of surgical soap. Fleas that don't drown succumb to the soap.

There are other things about Bogota that are unforgettable. Among them are the twisted beings, more like pretzels than humans, who beg before some of the churches, and the animated piles of dirty rags that trot along with five-foot or six-foot poles topped off the ensemble. Those who have lived here a long time and should know that the latter are Indian women from the city's slums and that they wrapped up somewhere in the rags with them is usually a baby.

Then there are the horns. Bogota specializes in blind corners which every driver signals with a loud, long blast. As blocks here

ROOSEVELT'S ENTRY IN 'PRIMARY' URGED

J. J. Brown Favors Candidacy, Regardless of Consent, If Vote Is Held.

If Georgia is to have a presidential preference primary, President Roosevelt should enter his name with or without his consent, J. J. Brown, former commissioner of agriculture, said yesterday on a visit to Atlanta.

"I can see no need for a primary," the veteran political leader said. "But if the politicians think they must have one and Mr. Garner enters, I think the many friends of Mr. Roosevelt should enter him as a candidate with or without his consent."

Mr. Brown asserted that while it has been the custom to obtain consent of anyone whose name is placed on the ballot, the law does not require it.

HOUSE ACTION SOUGHT ON FARM MARKET BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Representative Cooley, Democrat, North Carolina, moved today to break the deadlock holding up action on a bill by Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, to appropriate $5,000,000 to develop markets for farm products.

The measure, favored by southern commissioners of agriculture, is opposed by the Agriculture Department's extension service because of a contention there would be a conflict with its work.

WELCOME, BUT CHECK GUNS, SHEEPMEN TOLD

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Cattlemen and sheepmen have fought many a range war in New Mexico, so this sign greeted woolmen here for their 37th annual convention:

"Welcome, wool growers. 'Check your guns here. 'Cattle Growers' Association."

are short the noise is continuous. There is also the all-night bar and restaurant next door to our boarding house. A thin wall separates us from it and sleep, which usually comes about 3 in the morning. We doze lightly until when the customers begin tickling the waitresses. From then on the noise rises and the waitresses yell louder and louder until about 3 when the evening is climaxed by a game of table throwing. After that the place folds up for the evening.

On the other hand there are many things about Bogota that are admirable. Yesterday, for instance, we saw this sign on a dentist's office:

"Teeth pulled without pain—60 cents. Teeth pulled with pain—30 cents."

It is difficult to generalize about South America, Jack Spalding finds tomorrow, but he thinks he's on safe ground when he says citizens of the southern continent are much better informed about the United States than North Americans are about their neighbors to the south.

He Wants F.D.R. To Run

J. J. BROWN.

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE GREATEST PERIL.

Sunday's lesson, Matthew 21:17 to 22:14, presents the perils of rejecting Christ. I would say at once that the wilful rejection of Christ is the greatest peril. History past and future will attest this fact. It is true first, of course, for the individual, and as individuals reject Him as Saviour and Lord, that means that nations reject Him. And that is the greatest peril.

It was on Tuesday of Crucifixion Week in the temple at Jerusalem that Jesus offered Himself for the last time in His earthly ministry to His own people as their promised Messiah. They firmly rejected Him. Then follows the three parables of warning in the passage above cited as forming the basis of Sunday's lesson.

A careful study of these parables reveals a most interesting sweep of human history. Take the parable of the two sons, for example. Dummelow says:

"The 'certain man' is God, and He is represented as a Father, to set forth His impartial love to all mankind, righteous and sinful alike. The son who said 'I go, sir,' and went not, is the chief priests, scribes and Pharisees, who rejected for themselves the counsel of God. The other son, who at first insolently refused to go, and then repented and went, is the publicans and harlots, who believed and were baptized." More generally the first class embraces those who are satisfied with the outward form of godliness and with the avoidance of open sin; the second class those who, though sinners, know that they are such, and so are more easily brought to repentance.

The parable of the wicked husbandmen was indirect proof to the chief priests and elders as conspirators who were seeking the death of Christ. In it the householder represents God; the son, Christ; the servants, Moses and the prophets; the husbandmen, the Pharisees and scribes, teachers of the people. The parable further emphasizes the doctrines of the Trinity, the Incarnation, the Crucifixion, eternal punishment, and the Resurrection and Second Advent of the Lord.

Two vital questions emerge: Who are true sons? Who are true servants?

The Father desires in every true son love and loyalty, and these qualities will always be expressed in obedience, the true mark of the servant.

When one rejects Christ, he rejects the Way, the Truth and the Life. And the solemn fact must be remembered that life is fleeting—that the days pass swiftly by—that death is the one certainty awaiting every person. Therefore, consider the Master's call today.

WAGE LAW UPHELD BY FEDERAL JUDGE JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Federal Judge Louie W. Strum today upheld constitutionality of the federal wage-hour law.

"The power (of congress) under the constitution to restrict freedom of contracts between employer and employees is undeniable," he declared, ruling the law a valid exercise of federal legislative power. The judge's opinion was presented in a memorandum attached to an order overruling demurrers and motions to quash, filed in court by three concerns indicted here for alleged violation of the law.

LANDMARK PICKED IS SMOKE OF TRAIN EUGENE, Ore., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Instructor Jerry Andrews told University of Oregon student pilots to pick a prominent landmark and keep in line with it.

But Nick Dallas, of Heppner, still staggered badly. He had picked a column of smoke arising from a freight train.

Finns Have Plenty Aspirin, Need U. S. Planes--White

By WILLIAM L. WHITE, Special Correspondent. HELSINKI (By Mail): This one is about what the Finns think of us Americans, and, by the way, they are doing a lot of thinking about us in recent weeks and they have been very polite and courteous to the different bristly American commissioners who have come here to survey Finland's needs. Sometimes this politeness has required considerable self-control on the part of the Finns, who are frankly bewildered by us.

They know we sympathize with them and that we are expressing this sympathy in large sums of money, and they are grateful about this and also very mad and bewildered by it as well.

We are buying them medical supplies, food and clothing for the civilian population. Now it just happens that there is plenty of food in Finland and enough warm clothes and an ample supply of aspirin, and while, of course, it would be nice to have more, the Finns just now are thinking about other things.

War Materials Needed. Because, in case you may not have heard, they are right now fighting against the entire Russian empire and they desperately need a few things like pursuit planes, to keep the Russian bombers from blowing up all their railroad stations, and anti-aircraft guns, to keep them from blowing their women and children into stove-size chunks.

So their point of view on American aid is that, first, America legally owes them nothing at all, and they have no right to look a gift horse in the mouth. But, secondly, since America is generous and sympathetic enough to give them something, why shouldn't it be something which they need, instead of things which are very nice but which they could very gladly do without to get what they want?

Terror for Innocents. Without any American food and clothing at all some women and children in Finland—not many—might be chilly and occasionally hungry this winter, but no one would freeze or starve. And all of them would gladly go twice as cold and hungry if they could hear, overhead, the reassuring roar of their own planes instead of the other kind of roar of the other planes, and if you could see what women and children do and how their faces look when they hear this other kind of roar I think you would appreciate their point of view.

The government of Finland is a democracy responsive to the will of the people, and if all this money that Americans are raising for relief of Finnish women and children were given to the Finnish government to spend, every thin dime of it would go for anti-aircraft work and the unanimous and hearty consent of those women and children.

Hard To Explain. So, when they asked me why this money is not given directly to the Finnish government, then I have to explain that my country in addition to being generous and sympathetic toward Finland, is also tenderhearted and wants to make sure that none of this money will be used in such a way as might cause injury or discomfort to a Russian aviator flying over the working-class section of a Finnish town with a stream of cute little personal bombs dripping from each wing.

Perhaps I should add that I always try to explain this point of view without making my countrymen look like a bunch of sentimental whacks.

STOCK PRICES BREAK. ## Dr. W. E. Dodd, 70, Ex-Envoy To Reich, Dies of Pneumonia

Rites Will Be Held Tomorrow for Bitter Foe of Nazi Regime.

ROUND HILL, Va., Feb. 9.—(AP) Dr. William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany and a bitter critic of the Nazi regime, died today at his estate, Stoneleigh Farm. Dr. Dodd, who was 70 years old, had been weakened by an attack of pneumonia. He was placed under an oxygen tent yesterday.

He died at 2:10 p. m. Atlanta time. Because of a nervous disorder, he had been less active recently than during the months following his return from Germany, when he made speeches in Canada and the United States criticizing the Berlin government.

Dr. Dodd won an international reputation as an historian, and after his appointment as ambassador to Berlin in 1933 by President Roosevelt he was received by President Paul von Hindenburg as one having "warm appreciation of the cultural bonds between the two countries."

He became a bitter foe of Nazism, however, before he left his post in January, 1938. The funeral will be held at the home Sunday at noon, with interment in the family burying ground on the estate.

H. D. HIBBETT DIES IN HIS 32D YEAR
He Was the Son of Atlanta Rail Superintendent.

Hoffman DeWitt Hibbett, 31, of 221 Fourteenth street, N. W., son of E. A. Hibbett, Atlanta superintendent of the N. C. & St. L. railroad, died last night at a private hospital.

Also surviving are his mother, two sisters, Mrs. H. B. Crawford and Mrs. J. H. McCormick, and four brothers, G. J. Horace J. J. K. and E. A. Hibbett Jr.

Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

MAN IS WOUNDED BY TARGET PISTOL
Conley Resident Accidentally Shoots Self.

R. D. Fears, 37, was wounded critically yesterday by the accidental discharge of a 25-caliber pistol while he was shooting at a target in the rear of his home at Conley, Ga. Clayton county officers reported.

R. L. Wynn, Clayton county police, said Fears was attempting to move the magazine when the gun was discharged. The bullet struck him in the hand, then lodged in his stomach.

He was admitted to Grady hospital.

GIFT FOR COLLEGE
CUTHBERT, Ga., Feb. 9.—Residents of Cuthbert and Randolph county, at a mass meeting here this week, launched a drive to raise $5,000 as a gift to Andrew College. The gift would enable Cuthbert to build a new building and avoid its removal to Macon, which plan was formulated by the boards of Andrew and Wesleyan last fall.

The Latest for Milady

EYES FRONT! Gloria Dickson, of the films, makes an eye-compelling picture as she models one of the latest bathing suit creations, whose strapless bodice follows the trend in evening gowns. The voluminous robe is held at the throat by a hawser-like tie. How do you like it, girls?

ACT OF WAR Here is part of the group of 21 German seamen who were seized by a British warship recently when it halted the Japanese liner Asama Maru, 35 miles off the Japanese coast. They are entering a lighter which took them aboard the warship as prisoners. The seamen were returning to Germany.

WAR OFF JAPAN A passenger on the Asama Maru watches the unidentified British warship which seized Germans en route home via Japan and Siberia, to furnish one of the most dramatic incidents of the war so far. The warship stood by the liner for more than an hour.

MESSAGE TO MARS These girls will carry an attention-getting banner today when the delegates to the American Youth Congress march to the White House, to call on the President, who will address the group. Washington became youth Mecca yesterday as delegates arrived. (Story on Page 3)

HERE'S 1940 Attired in a comfortable and tricky new costume, Phyllis skims along on one of Hollywood's artificial skating rinks. It's a far cry from the outfit she wears above.

MONEY? SHUCKS! Millionaires don't awe Mickey Rooney. Not a bit. Here he is dancing a jig with Henry Ford, right, and the motor magnate's son, Edsel Ford, in Detroit, Mich.

EASY If you know how. This Massachusetts man showed how Finns ski.

Comedy, Adventure, Action Characterize Current Films

Fox Offers Comedy; Paramount, Double Feature; Rhodes, New Maisie Picture; Rialto Holds Newspaper Story; 'GWTW' in Ninth Week at Grand.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

Comedy, sprinkled with adventure and action, is the dominant characteristic of the current screen offerings, films which abound in excellent acting on the part of the supporting characters.

Particularly is the supporting cast good in "Destry Rides Again," heretofore chiefly distinguished by the advance publicity given to the battle of the century staged by Marlene Dietrich and Una Merkel in a frontier barroom. Good comedy is yours for the payment of a small admission price here.

And just a word of warning about the new double feature at the Paramount. Don't be frightened away by the title, "He Married His Wife." Give Joel McCrea, Nancy Kelly, and Una Merkel over Mischa Auer's pants, lost to "Frenchy" in a card game, will go down in movie history as one of the greatest fights between women, even surpassing the Rosalind Russell-Paulette Goddard battle in "The Women."

Though we've talked chiefly about Dietrich, who now merits the description "Actress," there is not one character outshining another featured player. Samuel S. Hinds, the gray-haired, dignified gentleman in many a film, turns in the best piece of character acting of his career. You won't recognize him, but keep your eye on the tobacco-chewing, top-hatted mayor who runs Bottleneck until Destry changes his plans. Charles Winninger does a rapid about-face from the town drunkard to the reform sheriff—all very comic.

"Destry Rides Again" is a story of the old shoot-'em-up west, gun fights, crooked gambling, barroom brawls and songs and of course the knight on his white horse (Stewart) and the shady lady (Dietrich). Destry cleans up the town with story-telling and no guns, furnishing a film to please the western addicts and the comedy supporters.

DOUBLE FEATURE IS NOT TOO LONG

The first regular double feature at a downtown theater in Atlanta opened yesterday at the Paramount and surprisingly enough it didn't make too long a program.

Rosemary Lane and Eddie Albert are featured in "Four Wives," the film sequel to "Four Daughters," which will have a midnight preview to-night at the Fox theater.

for one interested in seeing movies.

First rank film on the bill is "He Married His Wife," a delightfully pleasant little comedy in which Joel McCrea spends so much time at the race track that his wife, Nancy Kelly, seeks alimony. The characters, supporting ones as well as principals, get involved in a series of divorces and remarriages episodes that have everyone in a jungle maze.

Supporting roles are played by Elisha Cook Jr., Mary Boland, Roland Young and Cesar Romero. If you like double meanings, you'll find this comedy to your liking and good entertainment, given its chance.

On the supporting bill is "City of Chance," which again is a picture endowed with a good supporting cast and one with a plausible story which furnishes mildly diverting drama. It was directed by Ricardo Cortez, remember him?

Lynn Bari, metropolitan newspaper reporter, is assigned to get evidence sufficient to close a gambling house. She falls in love with the handsome young proprietor. All action takes place within the walls of chance.

AIRPORT PROJECTS TO BE STUDIED HERE

Southern Leaders Will Meet February 19-20, Make Development Plans.

More than 100 persons will gather in Atlanta February 19-20 for the southeastern regional airport conference under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Georgia Aviation Commission Board. It was announced yesterday by Winship Nunnally, chairman of the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Delegates from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida will map a plan to aid congress in setting up proper supervision of expenditures if the $125,000,000 airport development bill, introduced by Congressman Carl Vinson, is passed. They also will study plans already made by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

With William K. Jenkins, of Atlanta, presiding, the conference will be addressed by Harleee Branch, vice chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Authority; Major A. B. McMillen, head of the CAA's airport division; John Bayard, the airport division's statistician; Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield.

Congressman Vinson, Rear Admiral John H. Towers, Major General H. H. Arnold and Colonel Roger Q. Williams are among invited guests.

TOWN DRESSES UP FOR EDISON FILM

Port Huron, Michigan, To Have Premiere Today.

PORT HURON, Mich., Feb. 9.—(UP)—Time turned backward today to the years 1854-1856 when Thomas A. Edison was a boy and a budding genius who was to give the world electric light.

The eve of Edison's ninety-third birthday finds his boyhood home dressed as it was in the days when he was a news butcher on a wood-burning train between here and Detroit. The occasion is the world premiere tomorrow of the motion picture, "Young Tom Edison," starring Mickey Rooney in the title role.

Rooney is here with Louis B. Mayer, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Edsel Ford has promised to attend.

"Congo Maisie" and it is playing at the Rhodes.

Maisie finds herself stranded between engagements and through a quirk of fate becomes a guest at an isolated medical station where she patches up a wavering marriage, suppresses a native uprising and wins herself a husband all within the limits of a 90-minute picture.

The happiness characterizing the first Maisie picture has been forgotten at places for overdoes of hokum but the picture as a whole lives up to the fine standard set by the first offering.

Civil Service Bill Passed Under Ramspeck Guidance

Georgian Wins His Toughest Fight on House Floor; Measure Salvaged by 212-112 Vote But Battle Is Bitter; G. O. P. on Rampage.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Following the toughest battle he ever has had on the floor of the house, Representative Ramspeck, of Georgia, finally piloted his civil service bill through the lower chamber today by a substantial margin.

Just prior to the final "yea" and "nay" vote, a motion to recommit the measure to committee was defeated, 212 to 112.

The bill would give civil service status to some 250,000 to 300,000 federal employees. This would be done through non-competitive examinations. The fight with which Ramspeck had to contend came mainly from the Republican side. The G. O. P. forces contended for competitive examinations and the maintenance of a "real civil service."

At one point during the after-

N. Y. Man Leaves $900,000 to Open Free Cafeterias

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Approximately $900,000 of a $1,568,140 estate is set aside for feeding the hungry by establishment of a chain of free cafeterias under the will of Wilhelm Lowenstein, leather importer who died January 7, 1938, at an apartment here.

NEW POST GIVEN TO TATE WRIGHT

Local Government Body Names Him Secretary.

EATONTON, Ga., Feb. 9.—(P) Tate Wright, veteran official of the Georgia Association of County Commissioners, asked to resign a few days ago by its president as an aftermath of the Miller-Rivers dispute, has been elected executive secretary of the committee on preservation of local government.

Frank A. Dennis, chairman, announced here today. Dennis, publisher-businessman, also declared the committee is preparing to "intensify" its efforts in behalf of support of local governmental services through "state-wide collection and distribution of revenues."

"We will also continue our fight against abolition of the poorer counties," said Dennis. "We will serve in an even larger way as an agency through which the citizens of our poorer counties can obtain a hearing to the end that local public services in their communities shall share more equally in the commonwealth of the state."

MAN SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Charles Henry Shepherd, of 39 Meador avenue, suffered severe head lacerations last night when he was hit by an automobile on Peachtree road, just north of Buckhead, Fulton county police reported.

Officers said he was struck just as he stepped from the curb on the east side of the street. The driver was listed as Bill Reed, of 69 East Park lane. He rushed Shepherd to Grady hospital, where attendants said his condition was "serious."

MOVIE COUPLE WEDS.

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 9.—(P)—Adison (Jack) Randall, cowboy actor, and Louise Keys, film actress, were married today by Superior Judge Henry C. Kelly. They motored from Los Angeles.

MITCHELL RESIGNS WELFARE POSITION

Former Chairman Will Remain on Board; Successor Not Yet Named.

W. E. Mitchell, chairman of the Fulton county board of public welfare through many a stormy period, has resigned that position but will continue as a member of the board, it was disclosed yesterday.

His letter of resignation was submitted to the board January 15 but no action has been taken upon it.

Mitchell said the pressure of business would not allow him to continue as chairman. However, he plans to remain a board member for two years, having been appointed to a term of that length only last December.

Suggests Paden.

He recommended that Dean Paden, another board member, be elected to succeed him as chairman but Paden demurred on the grounds that his business would not allow him to devote so much time to the welfare job.

In the meantime, a committee of board members, composed of Paden, W. S. McLarin Sr., and Albert Gossett, is giving consideration to the matter of a new chairman and will submit a recommendation at the meeting of the board on February 19.

Chairman Two Years.

"I have held the chairmanship two years and I think that position should be passed around among all the board members," Mitchell asserted. "I have no idea what the board will do on its next meeting."

The board of welfare, which directs the policies of the department of public welfare, has been the center of political fire for years and Mitchell and Commissioner Gloor Hailey have been in controversy over operation of the department for many months.

Hailey and other commissioners earlier this week called upon the department to reduce the cost of administration so that more money appropriated by the county will go to direct relief for unemployable persons.

COTTON SEED GROUP IS HOST AT BANQUET

100 Farm, Industry, School Leaders Hear Economic Problems Discussed.

More than 100 agricultural, industrial and educational leaders from 40 North Georgia counties were guests of the Cotton Seed Crushers' association at a dinner here last night for a discussion of the state's economic problems.

Thomas C. Law, of Atlanta, president, and D. M. Berry, also of Atlanta, was chairman in charge of arrangements. Speakers included Walter R. Brown, extension director of the College of Agriculture of the University of Georgia; L. M. Sheffer, state supervisor of agricultural education, and Dr. Milton P. Jernigan, in charge of animal husbandry.

The meeting was the fifth and last of a series which has been sponsored by the association in various cities. Particular emphasis has been laid on the low yield of cotton per acre and methods of co-ordinating the work of all the agricultural forces in the state to improve the situation.

NEGROES EXECUTED FOR DUAL SLAYING

Tattnall Chair Exacts Payment for Covington Killings.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

REIDSVILLE, Ga., Feb. 9.—(P) Two Negroes died in the electric chair here today, closing the official records in the shooting and bludgeoning of an aged Covington, Ga., couple last September 12.

One of the Negroes, Joe Mathis, told prison attendants just before he died that he was present when the couple, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Trainer, both over 70 years old, were killed.

The other, James Fisher, alias James Johnson, made no statement. The two were pronounced dead within 15 minutes.

Investigators found the Trainers shot and clubbed in the dining room of their home on the Covington-Atlanta highway, just inside the Covington city limits, when they failed to open their store. The Negroes were arrested about three weeks later.

BURNS, PNEUMONIA FATAL TO WOMAN

Mrs. C. A. Franklin Dies at Montezuma Home.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MONTZUMA, Ga., Feb. 9.—Mrs. C. A. Franklin, 58, who was burned about a month ago when her clothing caught fire from an open grate, died at her home here today of pneumonia which developed last Saturday.

Mrs. Franklin, a native of Covington, was for many years prominent in religious and social activities. She was one of the co-founders of the Covington Christian Science church, and was its first reader for many years. She had been a Christian Science practitioner about 20 years. She moved to Montezuma about six years ago.

'Flying Bishop' Rides Circuit From Norway to Africa

Poultry Stuffing, Baking Featured As Cooking School's Classes End

Over 2,500 Persons Attend Last of This Year's Demonstrations Sponsored by The Constitution; Foods Expert Prepares Another Complete Meal.

Climaxing one of the most successful sessions of The Constitution Annual Cooking Schools, Mrs. J. Watson Shockley, home economics expert, concluded her four-day classes of lecture-demonstrations yesterday before a packed house at the Roxy theater.

More than 2,500 men and women watched attentively as she prepared her menu for the day, consisting of pineapple bran bread, roast chicken, corn meal muffins, butter sponge cake, cream frosting, cottage cheese and vegetable salad, and tea sandwiches.

The class, featuring poultry stuffing and various baking methods for breads, was conducted by Mrs. Shockley to illustrate her easy, useful recipes.

Miss Jane Wetherell, assistant to Mrs. Shockley, gave a dishwashing demonstration, illustrating the easy, convenient way to clean pots and pans as well as dishes.

In preparing a stuffing for poultry, Mrs. Shockley mixed bread crumbs, salt, pepper, sage, thyme and parsley. Minced onion was added to melted shortening, then the bread crumbs were added, and melted butter completed the process.

For the pineapple bran bread, shortening, honey, eggs, flour, baking powder, bran, unsweetened pineapple juice and chopped nut meats were the ingredients used.

The butter sponge cake, which may be iced with cream frosting if desired, was baked in a large, ungreased tube pan for about an

FAITH WILL LIVE, SAYS BISHOP WADE

Declares Church in Russia Crushed But Worship Goes on Secretively.

The faith shall not die. The Christian spirit is deathless and shall prevail, though men make war and nations fall and churches crumble under bombs. Some day, when the rule of hate has fallen, as all evil things must, mankind will turn again to the teachings of the Humble Carpenter of Galilee, and the love of man for man will stir the world.

So optimistically spoke the "Flying Bishop" of the Methodist church—Raymond J. Wade, of Stockholm, Sweden, who rides a circuit that stretches for 4,000 miles from Hammerfest in Norway to the Sahara desert, from the Madeira Islands to the lonely villages of the Siberian steppes.

"The church in Russia is crushed," he said. "But worship still goes on, in hidden places, as the Christians worshipped in the Catacombs to escape the wrath of the Romans."

"The church in Spain is crushed. Franco, who promised freedom to Protestant faiths, has not kept his promise. But as best they can, the people of our faith there worship still."

"In Czechoslovakia, in what was Poland, in Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, the light burns dimly, but it still burns. It will flame again some day. Europe, no matter what her destiny, will not slip back into spiritual darkness. The light of faith still burns and it will burn forever. It may be a long time. It may flicker, and seem to be gone out. But it will come to life again."

Bishop Wade, a swarthy, chunky native of Indiana, with a voice like a cello, was one of the principal speakers here yesterday at the "Methodist Advance" program at Glenn Memorial church at Emory.

He returned to this country in August after 12 years in Scandinavia, on the last voyage to this country of the German liner Bremen. He will return, war or no war, this spring, after the great Methodist conference at Atlantic City.

HALTING 'THIRD SHIFT' IN TEXTILES PLANNED

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A move to have the "third shift" abolished from the textile industry throughout the country was planned today by a committee of 16 labor and management representatives at a conference with James T. Moriarty, state commissioner of labor and industries.

The group decided to ask the Massachusetts Interstate Commission to urge similar commissions elsewhere to aid in abolishing the "third shift," created in several states to meet restrictions on continuous working hours.

CAR DOES DIRTY WORK, MAILBOX TAKES BLAME

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Professor Baker Brownell, of Northwestern University, took along his bull terrier, Tim, when he posted a letter recently.

Tim, who likes to chase cabs, was hit by one just as his master reached the mailbox.

A few days later dog and master again went to the mailbox. Brownell was sure Tim now would be frightened of automobiles.

Not at all—but he was scared stiff of the mailbox.

'High Pitch' Men Arrive With Their Slick Tricks

By FRANK DRAKE.

If the "high pitch" men come, can spring be far behind?

The answer is no, because the "high pitch" men and women are those super-salesmen who hawk odd and funny wares to passersby on busy city streets. And they've come to downtown Atlanta, where they apparently are doing a thriving business.

They can operate only when the weather is pretty, and yesterday several "pitchers" along Forsyth and Marietta streets were gathering knots of people who paused to listen to the super-sales talk of the super-salesmen.

"This is the cleverest trick in the whole wide world," says one in a steady monologue that employs every trick of the psychology of sales. This little modest statement brings a grin from some 40 or 50 people gathered around him as he illustrates how easy it is to perform the trick which bewilders all who see it.

"With this little instrument, you can shave off the finest, healthiest shreds of coleslaw ever," pipes a woman "pitch man" to a small group of men and women pushing each other to see over shoulders and around hats.

A step away a man is selling knife sharpeners—all you have to do is pay your money and you possess a bit of machinery that will put a keen edge on anything, except a tongue.

Listen to the man with the trick. "Anything you can get inside these rings you can make disappear with a mysterious wave of the hand," he promises. "Why, you can make a cow disappear if you can get inside this ring," and into it he drops a quarter of a dollar, which practically fills it.

A ripple of laughter slipped through the crowd.

A well-dressed man with a suit that must have cost one hundred bucks or more giggled—yes, he did. This distinguished-looking individual shifted an expensive overcoat from one arm to another and devoted all of his big-business brains to watching the man make the quarter disappear.

"You put this piece of paper over the ring and then you pick it up and then—". Mr. Big, taking a few minutes off from his affairs, follows every word as the "pitch man" talks.

The super-salesman is demonstrating his trick and he waves his pencil around in the air to keep the eager eyes of his audience from seeing too much.

Mr. Big's eyes follow the pencil and dart from it to the rings lying on the "pitch man's" table. Hands flutter and the rings are moved away. Where's the quarter? It's gone!

A gasp of bewilderment and admiration runs through the crowd. Eyes are shining and everybody's smiling. Men who a moment before were complete strangers and who would have stared an icy hole through you if you had smiled at them—actually were grinning at each other like old companions.

"Gosh, he's slick!" says one and another nodded perfect agreement to the statement of the man he'd never seen before.

"This trick comes from India," intones the "pitchman." "It's so simple even a schoolboy can perform it. Here, son, let's see you do it." And from the crowd he practically snatches a boy with books under his arm. And, the schoolboy performs the trick the first time. The quarter disappears again!

The old super-salesman now gets to work. Here comes the pay off. "This marvelous little trick costs only 15 cents," he begins and the crowd of men, not quite so friendly with each other now, starts dwindling. At the mention of 15 cents, Mr. Big, whose eyes have been large as some of the many, many dollars he obviously possessed, suddenly began remembering important matters. Perhaps the words "15 cents" recalled some big deal he was working on.

It was warm as toast but he hurried himself into his expensive overcoat and struck out at a sharp walk down Marietta street.

The only person we know of who bought the "cleverest trick in the whole wide world" for only 15 cents was Harold Martin.

City Editor Note: After many years' experience it has been learned for the first time where a reporter can be found when he is supposed to be working. The phrase cherchez la femme (find the woman) should be changed to find the pitchman.

F. D. R.'S ATTITUDE HELD 'ADOLESCENT'

Landon Attacks Roosevelt's Stand in Third-Term Speculation.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Alf M. Landon said today he thought President Roosevelt was taking "an irresponsible, adolescent attitude toward perhaps the most important question before the country today"—whether or not he will run for a third term.

Referring to a Hyde Park press conference last Monday, at which the President said he was getting tired of attempts to sound him out on a third term and that when anything was said it would be at a time of his choosing, Landon declared:

"In my opinion, President Roosevelt is acting and talking like a candidate."

Today's Youths Are Proving They Can Solve Their Own Problems

This Boy, Girl Were Willing To Work

By Caroline Chatfield.

There's much being written nowadays about the vexatious problems of the youngsters which they inherited from the former generations. Most of it is written by oldsters. What really counts is what the youngsters themselves have to say of their attitude toward their problems and their methods of solving them. The Atlantic Monthly conducts a department called "Under Thirty" and here are to be found some fine frank discussions. In January issue there's an article by a young man describing the struggle that he and his wife had to establish a home and build their marriage.

In the course of his salaried job he discovered that business men, little and big, could live on credit so long as they maintained a good credit rating. Of course he was mentally alert or he wouldn't have discovered this. At any rate he asked himself why he and his best girl shouldn't get married on credit. And they did.

They were destined to have the usual surprises that come to all newly marrieds; among them an acute attack of appendicitis with operation following, which came down on them before their furniture was paid for, but after their savings were gone.

Quite frankly they had it out with doctors and hospitals, explaining that the cupboard was bare and they couldn't pay at the time, but would prorogate their salary each month and eventually clean up the bills. After this program was completed they found that the Credit Bureau of their city had given them an A-1 rating which enabled them to buy what was necessary—still on credit. All with the happy result that they are nearly through paying for their modest home and expect to lay cash on the line for the baby now on the way.

Catch the idea, young folks? This pair wanted to get married so much that they were willing to work and save and do without, honoring the obligations that were incurred when they had to buy and couldn't pay.

Of course it isn't pleasant to be poor. It's harassing to be forever in debt. It takes character to endure privations while the income is being prorogated among the creditors. Nevertheless, the pair who aren't willing to have love and marriage unless it's served to them on a silver platter, shouldn't be too quick to cry out against economic conditions that appear to defeat them. There's usually a way around for the thinking, working, saving young pair who are willing to pay a price for love and marriage.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Printed Basque Frock for Tiny Tots

By Lillian Mae.

"Sing a song of Springtime," trills this happy little lass on her harmonica. No wonder she's so merry, in her piquant new printed basque frock. Mother has quickly stitched it from Lillian Mae's Pattern 4291, using the Sewing Instructor for clear, easy-to-understand directions. The pointed waistline is so adorably becoming, and the short skirt blithely flares above dimpled knees. Have a sweetest neckpiece with colorful ric-rac edging and ribbon facings—true peasant style. Or make a trim collar, perhaps in contrast, with tiny buttons down the front. A big perky bow and nicely fitting bloomers complete this charming style.

Pattern 4291 is available in children's sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6 takes 2 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric, 1 1/4 yards ric-rac and 1 yard ribbon.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

"How do you manage to have so many smart-looking clothes?" people will ask if you use our new brilliant Lillian Mae pattern book before planning your spring wardrobe. It's a complete fashion picture, with Day and Night Glamour Frocks, Spring Bridal Wear, Charm for Forty-Pluses, Town and Country Modes. There's a Budget Wardrobe, Spring Seasoning for the young set and carnival-gay cottings. All yours—for the easy sewing! Order a copy now! Book fifteen cents.

Send your order to Lillian Mae, Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP.

Thinking of yourself as a glamorous woman helps you become one, says a famous actress, but the thinking must be active—not passive, wishful thinking.

Daisies won't tell, but the camera never lies, as is evidenced by the picture of Miss June Spalding, at the left. She is giving someone a come-hither as well as a disarming and "I-won't-tell" glance in her daisy print and wool jacket. A dash of red is an old Spanish custom which has been Americanized and the print is offset by a 'carmen red' wool jacket. Note the applied daisy print pockets. And what's this? Miss Spalding, at the right, is giving the photographer the laugh. And why? Because she looks as though she has just returned from a stroll on the Rue de la Paix, but in reality it is just Peachtree. And what's this she is wearing? Gray has a tendency for demureness and even with Miss Spalding's sophisticated smile, her gray outfit is one of the smartest in the style sections this season. Fashioned of gray rodier wool, it is woven with white diagonal stripes. The solid gray jacket is finished with striped edging collar and cuffs. As aforementioned, daisies won't tell, but Lillian Mae at The Constitution will tell the price and the place where these outfits may be purchased. The number is Walnut 6565.

A Child Is More Susceptible To Anoxia Than an Adult

By Dr. William Brady.

Before I learned that a doctor might live without working I never decided which I'd rather do or go fishing, for at the last moment the Favens or the Humberts would invariably think they were going to have another baby. The ideal family doctor seems to be one who can never be depended on to keep an engagement outside of his practice except his own funeral.

In the talk the other day entitled "The Anoxia Blues" I promised to discuss effects of slight carbon monoxide anoxia some day later. This is a later day. No, frankly I don't care for fishing any more. Why kill harmless living things for sport? But please don't mention the bowling green until I finish these talks on anoxia.

Inhalation of air polluted with slight traces of carbon monoxide produces tightness across the forehead or sensation of a band constricting the head, throbbing headache, flushing of skin.

Inhalation of air more heavily polluted with CO produces the symptoms mentioned plus weakness in the knees, some mental confusion, perhaps nausea and fainting.

If the individual remains in the polluted atmosphere still longer the nausea may increase to the point of vomiting, and roaring in the ears accompanies collapse. At this stage the victim, if alone, may still have enough sense or will power to respond to the alarm and escape, but if the breathing of the polluted air continues the victim soon becomes more confused, unable to think clearly, even a bit irrational or unreasonable if others try to rescue him. If alone he is likely to lapse into unconsciousness and die when the blood becomes 60 per cent or more saturated with monoxide.

The effects described are seen only in cases of very mild anoxia. Where actual gassing occurs, from exposure to atmosphere grossly polluted with CO, a kind of paralysis may come upon the victim after a few breaths, so that he "freezes," that is, becomes unable to move, and unless rescued immediately, dies of respiratory paralysis.

Small animals, birds, children are more sensitive or susceptible to anoxia from breathing minute amounts of CO than are large animals or adults, because smaller beings have relatively larger respiratory exchange. Canaries carried in cages give warning of pollution of the air with monoxide by collapsing before an adult man would be overpowered. Hence they are carried by rescue crews in mines.

Persons with anoxia from mild CO exposure or chronic exposure are likely to show a striking pallor, yet a count of red corpuscles does not bear out the idea of anemia, instead more likely shows an increase in the number of red corpuscles.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Home Made Cold Cream.

At this season of year it would be a blessing to thousands of women who do their own housework if you would be good enough to print the formula and instructions for making good cold cream as it is given, among other-thing recipes, in your admirable booklet, "The Medicine Cupboard." (W. H. S.)

Answer—Pare into fine shavings one ounce of spermaceti and one ounce of white beeswax and melt together with moderate heat. (Two tablespoonsful are approximately one ounce). Then add five ounces (10 tablespoonsful) of sweet almond oil. Now dissolve as much borax as you can take up on a dime in 1 1/2 ounces (3 tablespoonsful) of stronger rose water, and add this to the other mixture. Then stir rapidly and continuously, or beat with egg beater or with heavy spoon until the mixture becomes uniformly soft and creamy.

Such home made cold cream serves every purpose a cream can serve, for cleansing, protecting, soothing or beautifying the skin. Relieves irritation, itching, chapping, sunburn, dryness and roughness. Judiciously applied to old skins it makes them look younger—and if you prefer talk you make men look longer. Cold cream, home made or pharmacy compounded, should always be freshly prepared—never more than a few weeks old. For copy of "The Medicine Cupboard," which includes a section on family formulae, send 25 cents coin and 1-cent stamped envelope bearing your address.

Adopt a Budget Plan According To Your Needs

Haunted by bills—actually embarrassed to pass shops where you have accounts overdue! How much more comfortable your state of mind when you go on a budget plan. To avoid running up excessive bills you allot fixed amounts to rent, food, clothes, recreation, other items. And you have a program to pay off bills now hanging over your head.

If you arrange to pay no more than a week's income for a month's housing—unlikely that any irate landlord will hammer on your door for overdue rent.

How much should you allow for your commissary department, if your income's $130 a month? For a family of four, about $10 a week or 30 per cent of your income will be enough—if you plan meals ahead, balance your chicken-and-ice-cream dinner with a stew-and-brown-betty meal the next day.

To keep your clothes expenditures within $15 a month, or about 11 per cent of your income, take an inventory of clothes on hand when about to buy new ones. If you choose a new dress or hat to harmonize with the accessories you already have, you'll cut expenditures, have smarter costumes. And to get your finances out of the red, lump together your back debts. Decide how much you can allow each month toward the total and then apportion this amount among your accounts till all are paid. Soon you're debt free—can get money ahead for a car, for what you want most!

To make a budget for your own needs see our 40-page booklet, "How to Budget Your Income." Explains how to divide your money to get what you want, gives sample budgets of real people—couples, families with children. Has ruled pages for a year's entries.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, HOW TO BUDGET YOUR INCOME, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Slim Your Hips With Hip-Rocker Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain.

It looks as if a dietitian had broken into the movies—at last! The most recent reducing diet to emanate from Hollywood is a 1,000-calorie menu. And it is all right! Ilona Massey went on it and lost 10 pounds, eight inches, and none of her sparkling vitality.

The lovely Viennese arrived in California weighing 129 pounds for her height of 5 feet 6 inches. That is a couple of pounds shy for normal weight. Nevertheless, the camera would have made her appear a buxom 138 pounds—so she had to take off 10.

Her first luncheon at the studio was the generous meal of a young woman who has never had to worry about her weight and does not expect to. She had chicken soup with noodles, two orders of goulash with thick gravy, a salad, and a dessert. That was her last feast! She then was whisked on what she called the "cottage cheese and skim milk diet" because it was so high in those two foods. It is a good diet, and if you want to take off 10 or so pounds by it, you can. The diet is given at the end of today's article.

Coupled with the diet was an undeviating program of exercise and massage. That, not just a diet, is responsible for Miss Massey's exquisite figure. For general exercise she made a practice of walking several miles every day. And for occasional recreation she got down and scrubbed her garage floor! That can be counted as rigorous exercise! In addition, she followed a select set of specific exercises.

As a result, she lost a total of 8 inches in measurements and all in the right places. Her new figure measures: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 35 inches; thigh, 21 1/2 inches. There's nothing wrong with that!

If you will follow these two magic-working exercises, along with a few others for variety's sake, you can make a rapid improvement in your own figure. The first exercise is for the waist-line.

Position: Standing with feet wide apart and parallel, arms stretched high overhead without hunching shoulders.

Position: Lying on back on floor, left knee flexed and hands clasped tightly about it. Have right leg straight out from trunk, parallel with floor.

Movement: Hitch forward with the trunk and rock over the hips, resting the heel of the right foot on floor, keeping that leg straight and the left knee flexed. Keep this position as you rock backward. Five counts will be plenty. Rest, then flex right knee, hold leg straight, and repeat for five counts.

Ilona Massey's 1,000-Calorie Diet.

BREAKFAST.

Sliced oranges.

The sliced toast, no butter.

Cooked cereal, no cream or sugar.

Coffee.

LUNCHEON.

Plain soup (not a creamed soup).

Salad—usually shrimp.

All the cottage cheese she could eat, but the kind made with milk, not cream.

One or two vegetables, such as steamed tomatoes, string beans or squash.

Cooked fruit.

Coffee.

Skimmed milk.

DINNER.

Broiled chicken or lamb chops.

Two vegetables.

No bread, no potatoes.

Crisp green salad.

Gelatin.

Coffee and one glass skimmed milk.

Supplement this diet with one Vitamin A concentrate daily.

MY DAY: Women Need Best Of Sex in Office

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

BOSTON, Mass.—The members of the Democratic national committee who were meeting in Washington, came to tea with me on Tuesday afternoon and I thought the ladies seemed particularly elated by the passage of a resolution which is a new milestone in the participation of women in party politics.

Steps of this kind are not of interest only to the women in one political party, they are of interest to all women, because what is done by one party is soon done also by the others. Those of us who believe that women's advice and influence are of importance in public affairs, look back with considerable interest at the record of our own particular party. In both major parties the record shows the growing importance of women. I belong to the Democratic party, and so I give you my party's record here.

In 1919 the executive committee of the national Democratic committee, anticipating the ratification of the constitutional amendment permitting women to vote, decided on September 27, to admit women to membership. In 1920, Miss Charl Ormond Williams was elected vice chairman of the national Democratic committee. In 1936, at the Democratic national convention held in Philadelphia, women were named as alternates to the platform committee for the first time, with the privilege of voting when regular members were not present, and now, on February 5, 1940, the Democratic national committee meeting in Washington, has passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, it is the sense of this committee that women be given an equal voice in the affairs of the Democratic party, and, therefore, be it resolved, That this committee recommend to the next Democratic national convention a consideration of a resolution there to be introduced, providing that each state, district and territory shall name two members to serve on the committee on platform and resolutions, and that the members so designated by each state, district and territory shall be of the opposite sex."

In addition, resolutions passed provided that four delegates-at-large be chosen from each state for each senator in congress and it was recommended to the states that one-half of these delegates be women.

At present, in the Democratic party, women have fifty-fifty representation on the state committees in 38 states. Only nine states in the Union do not give women equal representation on some of the political committees, either by party regulations or by law.

More important than these gains, however, is the caliber of women chosen for political offices. I hope that every woman is going to feel a great responsibility, not only in holding party offices, but in choosing those who are to hold these offices and who will, therefore, represent the women of their communities.

I left Washington yesterday by the evening train for Boston. Space will not permit me today to tell you what I have done here and of one thing which occurred on Wednesday in Washington which meant a great deal to me, but fortunately there is another day coming.

The Newest Word for Glamor—According to Metro-Is "Glex"

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.—Alice Faye has to take her corsets off when she sings those songs in "Lillian Russell." The poor girl's 26-inch waist has been constricted into a 20-inch area, which not only makes singing impossible, but isn't too good on the breathing either. Wonder what did Lillian Russell do when she had to let herself go in song? I'll bet she managed without taking off her corset.

Joan Crawford's idea of rehearsing three weeks before starting in "Susan and God" is a good one and should be done more often in Hollywood. It would save some of the 47 "takes" that are sometimes necessary for un-rehearsed players. Joan's reason for the rehearsal was to get the feel of stage acting. She migrates to Broadway next season for her long-dreamed-of play . . . A new word has been coined at Metro to publicize the charms of Lana Turner—glex—a combination of glamor and sex. Sounded as unattractive as "comphy" when I first heard it. But I suppose we'll get used to it—time.

Greta Garbo wants Laurence Olivier to be leading man in her next picture, and Olivier is enjoying saying "no." Five or six years ago, when he first came to Hollywood and was comparatively unknown, Olivier was up for a part in a Garbo movie, but then it was Greta who said "no." The Britisher was so discouraged he went back to England, swearing never to set foot in Hollywood again. But, as you know, he changed his mind, appeared in "Wuthering Heights," and now there isn't a leading lady here who wouldn't give several years of her life to get him in her picture. . . . Vivien Leigh, by the way, is currently re-furnishing her bedroom. Her new bed is a large affair, featuring a couple of painted Cupids. She and Olivier will occupy her house after they are Mr. and Mrs.

Robert Taylor's new whiskers didn't keep out the cold, and he is currently a "flu" victim. So is Joan Blondell. So is nearly everyone else in Hollywood. Say, I remember the time when "flu" was just called a cold. . . . John Garfield says he may buy the Heywood Brown Connecticut estate. That makes two houses on John's future property list. . . . Ginger Rogers' first husband, Jack Pepper, is working in Hollywood—as a master of ceremonies in a night club. But he doesn't get to see Ginger for the simple reason she does not visit night clubs. . . . Cary Grant's current charmer—Margot Steverston, late of the New York stage.

Kay Francis is refusing to give interviews—so I'm told by a reporter who asked for one. Kay's reason—there's nothing to be interviewed about. Well, she ought to know. . . . That recent "disappearance" of Clark Gable and Carole Lombard was just about the phoniest stunt I've ever heard of. Clark and Carole weren't to blame. They knew nothing about it until they read the newspapers. But one of these days a film star will be really missing, and no one will believe it—until it is too late. . . . Regardless of whether or not you like the story of "I Take This Woman," I think you will agree with me that Hedy Lamarr is improving as an actress. All she needs now is a few Gable movies to place her firmly at the box office.

Daytime Jacket, Bolero for Evening

By Barbara Bell.

For daytime and evening, for now and for later, there's a perfect furor of popularity for colorful little jackets. This design (1912-B) includes two of the most popular styles—the fitted jacket for daytime and the bolero for evening—and all the time, for that matter. You can make them both so quickly and easily, and have jackets to your heart's content, in your own pet colors, and at very little expense. Just send, right now, for Pattern No. 1912-B.

Your choice of materials for jackets is practically limitless. It all depends upon what you intend to wear them. Tweed, plaid or striped wool and flannel in high shades are smart for daytime; evening fabrics are faile, taffeta, brocade, and even the sheer frivolity of organdy and lawn.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1912-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires, for bolero, 1 1/3 yards of 30-inch material; for fitted jacket, with short sleeves, 1 5/8 yards; with long sleeves, 2 yards.

Send for our New Spring Pattern Book, and choose from more than 100 smart and original designs! For afternoon and for daytime! For yourself and the children! You can make lovely things, so easily and inexpensively, with these patterns, each including a step-by-step sew chart, to guide you.

Price of pattern 15 cents, book 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Against opponents' notrump contract, no bid from your partner, underline your correct opening lead, and second lead, when first lead wins, in the following suit combinations:

- (1) A K Q J 3 2 (7) A Q 10 9
- (2) A K Q J 3 (8) A J 10 3 2

WEST IS SQUEEZED?
South leads the club deuce, North's ace winning the trick. A spade is returned to South's king-jack tenace, South covering whichever spade East plays. The second spade is then played.

South now leads the club queen and West must discard.

(a) If West discards the heart ace, North will discard a heart. North's hand will be entered with a diamond to make North's last heart good.

(b) If West discards a diamond, North will discard a diamond king to unblock for South's queen-nine.

LEADS FROM ACES.

- (1) Ace then king. (2) King then jack. (3) King then jack. (4) Ace then king. (5) King then queen. (6) King then queen. (7) Queen then ten. (8) Jack then ten. (9) Ten then nine. (10) Queen then jack. (11) King then ace. (12) King then ace.

(12) Against suit contracts, many top-notch players prefer to lead the ace followed by the king and then the low card to show exactly three cards in the suit. Holding (11) the king is led to reveal four in the suit. Holding the ace-king doubleton lead the ace then king against suit or notrump contracts, if and when, the suit is led.

'I'm a Holdout,' Says Dizzy After Talk With Wrigley

Fred Sington sprinted a block and brought about a luncheon with Frank Leahy, head coach of Boston College.

Sington's sprint set no new speed records, but it did provide a mark for this round correspondent.

That is to say, Sington provided a second luncheon within 10 minutes of the first, which was enjoyed in the company of Messrs. Tommy Reeder and Oscar Brock.

And yet who would have the heart to reveal a recent luncheon when Fred Sington has the heart to sprint a block at this time of the year?

Coach Leahy had two rather disquieting experiences with southern football teams last season. Florida's Gators sprung one of the season's mightiest upsets in beating B. C., 7 to 0, early in the year.

Clemson College handed B. C. the second defeat of the season in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. It was a baseball score, 6-3.

"Clemson had one of the most versatile teams we faced all year," Frank Leahy said yesterday. "Strangely, while McFadden and Bryant were very good, it was the lesser known sophomore fullback, Charley Timmons, who broke our back. He hadn't played a great deal prior to our game."

"By the way, we have a late September date open. How good is Clemson going to be next season?"

"Well, they should be slightly off from last year, what with McFadden and Coach Jess Neely both gone."

"Yeah, that sounds interesting but I don't think we're going to take on ANY southern team that early. Might play Clemson again in 1941—late in the season," Coach Leahy added.

When B. C.'s affable head coach, who talks so much like Jack Meagher you'd think it was Meagher carrying on a conversation with himself if both were placed behind a screen, went to pay the bill, he encountered some difficulty.

One of his "friends" had tipped off the cashier that spurious twenty-dollar bills were in circulation here. Leahy had only a twenty and had quite a time convincing the cashier it was really made by Uncle Sam.

WORKED WITH CROWLEY.

Coach Leahy graduated from Notre Dame in 1931. He played with boys like Frank Carideo, Joe Savaldi, Moon Mullins, Jack Cannon and Ted Twomey.

Leahy spent a year coaching at Georgetown and then, in 1932, he went with Frank Crowley as line coach at Michigan State.

Both Leahy and Crowley got a real break that season. Major Kavanaugh was on his last legs, so to speak, at Fordham. Ram athletic officials decided to hire the coach of the best-looking team on the Fordham schedule.

Michigan State was deemed that team and so Crowley went to Fordham as head coach and took Leahy with him.

And up until this past season, Leahy remained at Fordham with Crowley. In his first season out as head coach of a major school, Leahy lost only two games. Florida upset him, as mentioned, and Clemson beat him in the Cotton Bowl.

Strangely, Jim Crowley had all his troubles with southern teams, too. Alabama and Tulane inflicted the Rams' only defeats of the season.

So it is small wonder Leahy says, "We're not going to play ANY southern teams early." Jim Crowley may feel the same way.

STILL ROOM FOR THE LITTLE MAN.

"There's still room for the little man in football," Coach Leahy pointed out. "Tech, of course, has its Bosch. And we had a boy last year named O'Rourke. He came out of the Clemson game weighing only 147 pounds. He weighed 153 before the kick-off."

"O'Rourke played more minutes than any other player on our squad. He played more than 50 minutes of every game, which speaks for his durability."

"He is not the average little man, because O'Rourke is a six-footer. He doesn't have the legs of an athlete. You'd think that weight distributed so sparingly over a frame this big would make the boy liable to injury. But he never gets hurt. Yes, he'll be back next year."

"Funny thing happened after the Clemson game. The Boston papers had been playing up McFadden without using his first name. Radio reports bore down on his first name. So when we got back fans were asking about it. They said, 'That fellow Banks was a lot better than McFadden. Who was he?'"

KIRBY GOES TO WORK.

Dot Kirby dropped around yesterday with the tan of Florida suns on her cheeks. The grade was a little steep in the two tournaments in which she played.

"Need a little practice, huh?" the nose reporter asked.

"Yes, and I'm getting it. Pop Beckett has got me practicing an hour a day, every day. Only thing, he put me to work and then skipped off to Chicago for a meeting of the P. G. A. But I've got to practice. He'll be after me if I don't."

Dorothy entered the Florida tournaments without having had a chance to practice because of Atlanta's unusual weather. And she made a great showing in spite of it.

The next tournament doesn't come up until the 12th of next month at Belleair, Fla., and Dot intends to be ready for that one. Later on she'll play in the Forest Hills tourney at Augusta, the North and South at Pinehurst, the Southern Amateur and the National.

Thomasville Fans Hope Sarazen, Hagan Enter

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 9.—(P)—Thomasville golf fans are hoping two of the game's most famous old-timers, Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagan, both will be in action in the Thomasville open next month. Little Gene, who has played here before, already has indicated he will compete and Hagan is considering his first competitive appearance on the Glen Arven layout.

Bob Bowman Signs Cardinal Contract

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 9.—(P)—Pitcher Bobby Bowman said today he had signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals for $5,500 and a "sizable bonus."

The right-hander returned his official contract unsigned two weeks ago and Branch Rickey, Cardinals executive, came to McComas, Bowman's home near here, to talk over the stalemate.

OLE DIZ BRINGS HIS FAMOUS PITCHING ARM TO CUB-TOWN

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—The 1940 edition of Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean, who steamed off 15 pounds instead of words this winter, came to town today, ostensibly in line of duty for a Mississippi baseball school with which he is connected. But Diz promptly went into a huddle with Cub Owner P. K. Wrigley and after a two-hour conference announced he was a holdout. In this picture the wide-angle lens reveals how big an item Diz's famed sore arm really is. Once it was the most valuable and effective soupbone in the baseball world.

TECH TO BATTLE VANDY TONIGHT

Jackets Favored Because Several Commodores Unable to Play.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 9.—Georgia Tech's basketball team arrived in town during the night for a game tonight against the Commodores of Vanderbilt.

Mundorf said he would probably start Captain Walter Hayman and Boneyard Johnston at forwards, Jim Hughes at center, and Carlton Lewis and Charlie Burroughs at guards.

Jim Buford, Vandy coach, said injuries made him undecided on his starters.

Crackers, Rockmart Top 3-Game Show

Bulldogs Meet Stone Mountain; Sewell and Sears' Girls Clash On Polio Card Sunday

Plans were completed yesterday for the mammoth basketball program at Sports Arena Sunday afternoon, the proceeds to go into Grantland Rice's national campaign to fight infantile paralysis.

Jack Troy, district sports chairman in charge of the drive, announced that Sunday's card will embrace three fine games, starting at 1:15 o'clock.

In addition to the rubber game between the powerful Atlanta Crackers and the rangy Goodyear five from Rockmart, which beat the Crackers last week, there will be a contest between the Crimston Bulldogs and Stone Mountain, one of the two teams to hold a victory over them this season, at 2:15.

The main event begins at 3:30, featuring the Crackers and Rockmart in a battle for blood. Both squads are steamed up, and anything is apt to happen. Referee of the feature attraction will be Walton Laney, coach of the Jewish Progressive Club. Hyman Kaufman will umpire this one and take the Bulldogs-Stone Mountain game. All officials are donating their services.

Goodyear officials make it clear that while they are happy to have a part in such a splendid undertaking as the polio drive, their main objective in coming to Atlanta Sunday will be to "beat those Crackers."

Both teams will be at their full strength for the struggle.

Bates won both the 50 and 100-yard races.

The summary: 300-yard medley relay: Won by Georgia (Dotter, Hanson, Barnett). Time, 3 minutes, 22 seconds.

220-yard free style: Erwin (G.), Van Arsdale (T.), Cory (G.). Time, 2 minutes, 32.8 seconds.

50-yard free style: Bates (T.), Walters (G.), Fries (G.). Time, 23.3 seconds.

Referee: Duncan (T.), Villagellu (T), Wood (G.).

100-yard free style: Bates (T.), Walters (G.), Fries (G.). Time, 33.7 seconds.

150-yard back stroke: Dotter (G.), Erwin (G.), Speed (T.). Time, 1 minute, 54.4 seconds.

200-yard breaststroke: Hudson (G.), Hutchinson (T.), Magill (G.). Time, 2 minutes, 50.2 seconds.

400-yard relay: Barnett (G.), Smith (T.), Van Arsdale (T.). Time, 5 minutes, 47.3 seconds.

DECATUR GIRLS BEAT SEMINARY

Decatur girls' basketball team won its fifth victory of the season yesterday by defeating Washington Seminary, 36-28.

Boswell and Dukehart shared scoring honors for the winners, each with 13 points. Hudson, however, of Seminary, was high point with 18.

Decatur's next game will be against North Fulton Tuesday in Decatur.

GILLESPIE BEATS HENRY PRUSOFF

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9.—(P)—Billy Gillespie, a University of Miami sophomore seeded ninth, continued his giant-killing activities in the Roney-Plaza tennis tournament today by eliminating Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, fourth seeded.

In an earlier round, Gillespie put out of the tournament Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, who was sixth seeded.

Tomorrow Gillespie will run up against his toughest opposition when he faces Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, who did not play today.

The results: Quarter-finals: Billy Gillespie, Miami, defeated Henry Prusoff, Seattle, Wash., 3-6, 6-2, 6-0; Gardner Mulloy, Miami, defeated Martin Buxby, Miami, 7-5, 6-2, and Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., beat Hall Surface, of Kansas City, 6-3, 6-3.

Hughes Will Talk To Sigma Phi Mu

Dr. Julius Hughes, prominent Atlanta golfer, will be the principal speaker tonight at the alumni banquet of the Sigma Phi Mu fraternity, 26-year-old organization which contains in its membership list the names of Bobby Jones, Bryan Grant and Judy Harland.

DIZ ANNOUNCES HE'S A HOLDOUT

Rather Starve Than Pitch for $10,000, He Says After Asking $15,000.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(P)—Jerome Herman Dean today definitely joined the Chicago Cubs' holdout brigade.

"I'll starve to death before I pitch ball for $10,000 a year," said Dean explosively at the end of a futile two-hour conference with Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs.

Dean, paid $20,000 last season when he won only six games, had demanded $15,000 for 1940. Wrigley's offer was $10,000. After two hours of discussion, Wrigley stopped for a moment where newspapermen and photographers were waiting in another office, and said:

"Your subject will be out in just a minute." Then he started down a hall.

"Wait a minute," urged a reporter. "You're our subject . . . at least, a part of it."

"Not me," replied the retreating Wrigley. "I'm back in the gum business . . . thank God."

HERE COMES DIZ.

A couple of minutes later Dizzy appeared.

"I ain't signed," the famous hurler began. "He offered me $10,000. I wanted $15,000. I'll starve to death before I sign for that. I'll go back to my farming place near Dallas. But there ain't no hard feelings between us. It's just business after all."

Dean said he did not expect any further conferences with Wrigley, although he will remain in Chicago until Monday.

"There ain't anything left for either of us to say," drawled the big pitcher. "We covered it all today."

Dean's original proposal, calling for a bonus if he won 12 or more games next season, was overruled before the conference began because of baseball's law against such contracts.

Dizzy was asked:

"Wouldn't you take Wrigley's word of a bigger chunk of dough if you proved your arm was okay?"

NO, SIRE.

"No, sire," he replied. "That ain't my way of doing business."

Before his conference Dean predicted a great year for himself, declaring he would win 20 games. He said he had been playing golf and sawing wood and had no pains in his pitching right arm.

"Don't I look in good shape?" he queried.

Truthfully, he did. He was dressed in his Sunday best blue suit. There wasn't an ounce of overweight noticeable on his huge frame.

Dean will join the faculty of a baseball school opening in Jackson, Miss., next Wednesday.

"Better remind him," Wrigley smilingly said, "not to forget to send back his Cub uniform."

Preacher Gets Ace On His Second Try

He did and he didn't make a hole in one. It was this way:

Rev. E. K. Hardy, playing the Candler Park course alone yesterday afternoon, using a five iron, hit his tee shot on No. 3 far wide to the left. He teed up again and drove again. Straight to the green and plunk—it trickled into the cup.

The Reverend, who had a 38 for the round, has been playing less than a year. He "sho" hates not to get credit for that official ace.

Bob Cards Birdies On First 4 Holes

Great Round Includes One Bogy; Ex-Champ Prepares for Masters' Tourney.

By JACK TROY.

Eighteen years ago—it was 1922, the year before he beat Bob Cruickshank for the National open championship—Bob Jones toured East Lake's No. 1 course in 63 record-breaking strokes.

On that September day, playing with his father, Abe Adair and Tess Bradshaw, he broke his own record of 66—and it was the seventh time he had set a new course record. Par then was 72 and the card follows:

Par Out 434 553 435—36
Bob Out 324 443 434—31
Par In 434 455 443—36—72
Bob In 433 454 433—32—63

He had nine birdies and never was over par.

On February 14, 1930, before he set out to take the golf world by the ears, Bob Jones shot his second 63. Here is that card:

Bob Out 334 333 334—30
Bob In 434 354 433—33—63

Yesterday, Bob Jones, firing the brand of golf for which he long has been famous, equalled the record again. He started out with four birdies in a row and only once did a bogy show up on his card. He shot a 4 on the par 3 No. 8.

The official course record is 64, established in competition by Gene Sarazen. Only three 63's ever have been shot. Bob Jones shot all three.

Bearing down in preparation for the Masters' tourney at Augusta in April, the only tournament in which he plays any more, Jones has had two other good rounds this week. He fired a 67 on Tuesday and a 69 on Thursday. But, of course, they are totally eclipsed by his 63 of yesterday.

Bob paired with R. A. McCord against Dr. Bill Warren and Harold Sargent yesterday, and McCord had a couple of birdies which helped give his side a best ball of 61.

DRIVING WELL.

Young Sargent, who has been helping Bob Jones "iron out" a couple of faults which had crept into his game, reported that Jones was driving well and that his irons were particularly good.

"Naturally, he must have been rather true on the greens," Sargent said.

In 1930, the grand slam year, Jones had 23 subpar rounds on the No. 1 course before entering competition.

Today his game is sounder and stronger than it has been in years. He seems determined to make his best showing in the Masters' tournament and many more such.

Mamie Refuses to Give Star Money. Star Goes to the Yacht Harbor Pier

By SYLVIA TAYLOR.

SYNOPSIS.
Star Bright is constantly humiliated by her mother, Mamie, who refers to her as "peter days," and her stepfather, Joe Delevan, who is mysterious about his driving a truck at night. She is given at the home of Judge and Mrs. Bennett by their daughter, Sheila, Star's friend. She is given a party by a prominent physician, dances again and again with her. She dances with as her mother had insisted upon dancing lessons even if the grocery money went unpaid. Mamie's ambition, as her child's name indicated, being that Star should shine on the stage. Leslie drives Star home but when Mamie, frowsy and querulous, answers his repeated ringing of the doorbell, Star hurries in with a despairing good-night. Yearning more determined than ever the next day to get away from her home when the phone rings and her type-setting teacher sends her to Nina Lambert, a movie star, who wants a secretary to live in her house and be on call when she feels like dictating. Mamie objects, recalling the money she spent on dancing lessons, but Star says she won't go on the stage. She meets many interesting people at Mrs. Lambert's. A movie star, Nina, who calls making a noisy demand for her daughter, and Star gives her what is left of her small salary. Nina, who is just out of college, at home awaiting a job and Star falls in love. Star thinks she sees a difference in Nina's manner toward her, but Bob reassures her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XI.

"There's no use you being stubborn about it. Men like Bob Lambert don't grow on trees. It isn't too late to get in touch with him. They aren't going until the end of this week. You can telephone him."

"No, I promised not to see him again and I am going to keep my promise. I don't even want to marry him now."

"Then you're a fool," raged Mamie. "Where are you going to live? What are you going to do?"

"I'll work. I've had my application in with an agency for a week and they feel sure they can get something for me soon. If you will lend me a little money until then, just a little, mother, it won't take much. You can spare it from the grocery money, can't you? I'll pay you back."

"No you won't," her mother retorted. "Because there won't be anything to pay back. You don't have to starve. You know what you can do."

"But I can't call Bob, I tell you. I promised Mrs. Lambert. 'What's a promise in a case like this? Don't you ever consider anyone but yourself? How about me? Where's the money you promised to give me every week?'"

The girl stared at her with somber eyes. "I'll give it to you just as soon as I'm working. If you'll help me until then."

"I've spent all I'm going to on you," Mamie flared, entirely forgetting or disregarding the fact that Star had given her more than she could spare from the small salary Nina had paid her.

Mamie had worked herself into one of her ugliest moods. "Look at the money I threw away training you to be a dancer. She almost shouted. 'And what did I get for it? Right now, if you really wanted a job, Joe could get one for you. But no, you're too high-hat to work for any of his friends. You're going to be a lady. All right, be one! But don't expect me to help.'"

Star's face was paler even than usual as she asked, "Would you let me go out of here with only a dime in my pocketbook?"

"You can stay here if you'll take Joe's advice. He can help you get a job."

"No thank you!" Star declared passionately. "Then call Bob. He'll help you even if you don't want to marry him. You've got your nerve. Mamie said, raising her voice to the pitch Star knew preceded an outburst, "to come here begging me for money."

Without another word Star turned toward the door. Mamie's voice pursued her.

"There are plenty of things you could do, but you're just too proud to do any of them. After you've gone hungry, give, maybe, you'll appreciate a man who is crazy to marry you."

As the door closed behind her Star found that she was shaking from head to foot. In spite of all the trouble they had had, the arguments and scoldings, she had not believed that Mamie would really let her walk out of the apartment with no money. She had always told herself that in a crisis her mother would help her. She knew better now. She had no one. No single person to whom she could turn. Bob belonged to a past she was determined to forget. She had promised Nina no matter what the cost.

Her hour of need was overdue. She dared not spend the last dime she had for street car fare. Blind with despair, she walked aimlessly, neither seeing nor caring where she was going. She had thought when she left Nina's that she had reached bottom. But until you were without money or the hope of making any you didn't know what real trouble was. She would save the dime for breakfast—but then what? The landlady had told her she would have to give up her room before noon the next day.

"I'm not running a charitable institution," she had reminded her. "And I can rent that room for as much as you're paying any time. If I wanted to, I could hold your clothes for the two days over your week, but I won't do that. You can have your things, but you'll have to get out."

Star didn't blame her. It was not the landlady's fault that she was down on her luck. But what shall I do? the girl thought. She had already telephoned the teacher who had recommended her to Nina, but he was on his vacation. Maybe it had been foolish of her not to let Joe get her a job if he could at one of those mysterious night clubs Mamie was always talking about but with every instinct in her, Star feared anything connected with Joe. She had suspected for years that his business—whatever it was—was not legitimate. To continue in the sordid atmosphere of her home was worse than death.

Was death so terrible, she wondered, thinking of her room at Nina's with homesick longing. Perhaps after all she had been wrong to think she could take fate into her own hands. Perhaps from the beginning she had been meant to lose.

Completely absorbed in her thoughts, Star had paid no attention to where she was going. It had been late in the afternoon when she left her mother's apartment. Suddenly she realized that twilight had faded into dusk. Lights were blinking on in the houses across from the yacht harbor toward which she had been walking. She used to come here as an adolescent girl to watch the little vessels being overhauled and renovated. It had given her a feeling of adventure to see them. Sometimes people would be on deck. Such carefree, happy people who seemed to inhabit a different world. A world unmarred by angry words and evil, scared faces like that of her stepfather.

Had she sought it now unconsciously in her need for reassurance that there still was such a place and such people, or for a more sinister reason? The waters of the bay lapped against the wooden piers. How much courage would it take to jump in and be carried away? Was it worth it to go on fighting?

Star had never been able to understand how anyone could commit suicide. When she read about such things in the paper she always felt if they had waited things might have changed for them. If you pushed on through the blackness there was sure to be light ahead. It had been a comforting theory, but for the first time in her life she was doubting it. Wasn't it just one of those sayings people mouthed to console themselves? But the time for deceiving herself was past.

"I had a dime in my pocketbook," she thought. "Just a dime. A thin dime, mother would say. After I have spent it for breakfast tomorrow I will call at the agency. They will say, 'Sorry, Miss Bright. Perhaps tomorrow.' But I can't wait until tomorrow. I can't listen to that again, knowing that 24 hours must pass with nothing to eat. And tomorrow I have to give up my room."

"Suppose I did break my promise to Mrs. Lambert and call Bob? He hasn't any money except what she gives him. Until he goes to work in October he is completely dependent on her. Or suppose I go home and get me involved in some of his crooked schemes? I'd rather die than that. Drowning probably isn't so bad, but it would be terrible if I should change my mind after I had jumped. And I might change it. Life without a room is better than being dead. Just being able to breathe... I haven't any money or any place to go, but I'm not beaten yet, because I don't want to die."

This conclusion surprised her. How could life still be so important stripped of everything ordinarily considered essential? But it was. Just the fact of her heart pumping the blood into her veins, her lungs filling with the moist, cool air.

Star had walked to the end of the deserted pier and stood looking down into the dark water but no longer afraid. The will to live had refused to surrender, although she was trembling with reaction. Her face felt drained of color. Tears blurred her vision. It was one way out but she would not take it. She would go on living at any price.

Suddenly she had the feeling that some one was behind her. Wheeling, she saw a man in a sweater and slacks. His features in the darkness were not plain, but he had a nice voice. "What are you doing out here?" he asked.

Ordinarily she would have walked away without replying. She knew how to protect herself against the advances of strange men, but the moment before had been the most despairing of her entire life. Any human being would have been welcome inside the awful vacuum into which she had been forced.

"I was just looking at the water," she said. "No idea of jumping, I hope. I hate getting soaked."

"Do you mean you would have rescued me if I had?"

"I'd have tried, but I trust you won't put me to the test."

Star felt as if a band which had been tightening about her heart, suddenly snapped. She smiled uncertainly.

"That's funny, because I have just decided it wasn't worth it. But if I had decided the other way you would have rescued me out so the result would have been the same in either case."

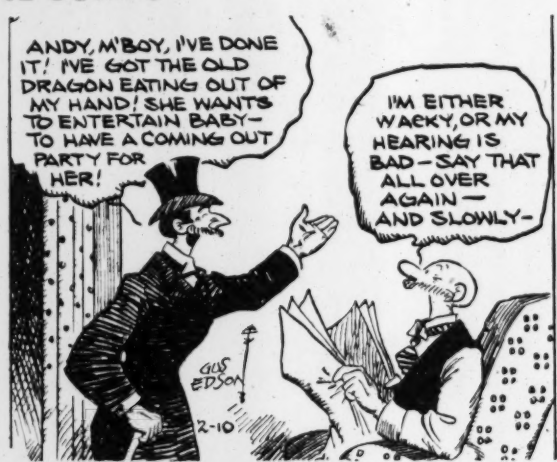

"Which proves you weren't meant to die yet."

Star said slowly, "I guess you're right. I don't want to die."

"Good girl," he approved. "Now that we've settled that, how about walking back to that cruiser over there and having a bite to eat?"

Your Own Horoscope for Feb. 10th

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) Writers, editors, and those things that call for your signature should be given extra care before 10:22 a. m. After that time affairs take an active turn for the better, making the day auspicious for general business interest and industrial works.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS) Attend to routine matters today and avoid confusion, worry and deception. By practicing co-operation and attending to regular affairs, more will be accomplished.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI) The entire morning and until 2:06 p. m. should put aggressive action behind matters dealing with land, and if you have some long standing matters that are unfinished, try to complete them. The entire day favors expanding your sphere of action.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER) Previous to 10:09 a. m. favors affairs that require good human, affable and pleasantness. After 10:09 a. m. favors social affairs, dealings with women.

July 23rd and Aug. 22nd (LEO) After 2:35 p. m. in an auspicious period for meetings, conferences, plans and projects, both of a social and business nature. During the morning hours avoid publicity and stick to routine.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO) Previous to 10:02 a. m. favors general business interests. Between 10:02 a. m. and 3:44 p. m. guard against impulsive actions and attempting more than you have the ability to carry through.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA) You will attain more success today by attending to routine. Delays and hindrances will mar your progress now. Be deliberate in what you do.
